Violence Flares As Cyprus Red Party Is Banned

British Soldier Killed And Five Others Injured

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British government's outlawing of the Communist party on Cyprus provoked a new wave of violence in this crown colony today. A British soldier was killed and five others were wounded.

Sporadic strikes swept the island in protest against the anti-Red order. Archbishop Makarios denounced the move against Cypriot Communists.

The archbishop, leader of the Enosis (union with Greece) movement said:

"We unreservedly denounce the action of the British government, irrespective of the fundamental differences which separate us from those against whom the government action is aimed. We believe an ideology can be fought only by another and better ideology and not by force."

Reds Stirred Dissension

Enosis demands immediate self-determination for Cyprus, meaning freedom to become a part of Greece, but the British have promised only greater self-government and eventual self-determination without setting any date.

The Communists' apparent determination to "prolong dissension and turbulence" on the island — headquarters for British forces in the Middle East—was given as the reason for the order outlawing them.

Pro-Greek Cypriots are campaigning to drive the British out with constant sabotage, riots, hit-and-run bombings and sniping. From its beginning Enosis has had strong communist support.

Soldier Shot To Death

The soldier was shot today in Nicosia, where two men fired on him and another soldier as they patrolled a street. The second soldier was wounded.

A British civilian shot and wounded one of the attackers in the leg.

Earlier today, three other British soldiers were injured by a bomb hurled from the window of a Limassol school. In Famagusta, another bomb injured a fifth soldier and damaged two cars.

The ban on the 20,000-strong Communist party (Akel) announced by Gov. Sir John Harding was followed immediately by a military raid on the organization's Nicosia headquarters.

Ike, Beginning His Slowdown, Has Quiet Day

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP) — President Eisenhower started today the slow-down his doctors have prescribed. And there wasn't any yes or [illegible] as to whether he has called Gov. Averell Harriman of New York a "Park Avenue Truman."

One official presidential action on a light day was signing statements urging the American people to renew their devotion to "the most precious of liberties" guaranteed by the Bill of Rights and to "defend them against all forms of attack."

Ike Has No Visitors

Bill of Rights Day will be observed tomorrow. It commemorates the adoption of the first 10 Amendments to the Constitution which set forth such rights as freedom of speech, press and religion, and the rights to privacy and fair trial.

There was nothing at all on the President's schedule today — no official callers or any social visitors. He couldn't even get in any putting practice because the golf green at his country estate was frozen out of commission.

"This," said press secretary James C. Hagerty, "is going to be a very quiet day."

Hagerty Parries Questions

Then for the next few minutes Hagerty was busy amiably parrying questions as to whether the chief executive has termed Gov. Harriman a "Park Avenue Truman."

In Washington, Republican congressional leaders who sat in with Eisenhower on a legislative briefing Monday said there was some discussion of Harriman. Harriman, a probable candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, has been praised by former President Harry S. Truman.

Forester's Wife Found Strangled

LINCOLN, Nebr., Dec. 14 (AP) — The wife of the Lincoln forester was strangled today in the young couple's secluded home in a mid-town city park.

Darrel F. Parker said he found the partly clad body of his 22-year-old wife on a bed when he returned home about 12:30 p.m.

Brown wrapping twine was knotted about her neck, a rag stuffed in her mouth and her hands tied behind her back. She was wearing a sweat shirt, which had been torn, and her blue jeans were found nearby.

Lancaster County Atty. Elmer Scheele said an autopsy showed death resulted from strangulation but whether she had been sexually assaulted had not been established.

The small white frame house is about 150 yards from a main entrance of Antelope Park. It is about 250 yards from the nearest house.

7-Week Strike Of Airline Flight Engineers Settled

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (AP) — United Air Lines today announced settlement of a seven-weeks strike of AFL-CIO flight engineers and said the engineers would return to their jobs immediately. The air line had been maintaining service without the striking engineers.

The air line said in a statement:

"An agreement to end the flight engineers strike against United Air Lines was reached late today following a meeting of top air line and union officials in Washington, D.C.

"The settlement, culminating a walkout of 252 of United's 460 flight engineers, was reached by officials of United, the AFL-CIO organization, and the Flight Engineers International Assn.

"At the same time a new contract between the United and FEIA was signed.

"Under terms of the contract United retained the right to employ pilot-qualified engineers and to establish crew requirements for future aircraft. At the same time the company extended job security to those who do not already have pilot qualifications by offering to give them pilot training, or, if they do not desire such training, to retain them as engineers."

LABORITE LEADER — [illegible] Gaitskell (above), 49, was elected leader of the British Labor Party in London yesterday. He succeeds former Prime Minister Clement Attlee who stepped out as party leader. (AP Photofax)

Adlai Will Enter Five Primaries; Lausche In Race

[By The Associated Press]

Adlai Stevenson announced Wednesday that he will test his strength in four more Democratic presidential primaries next year.

Already committed to contesting the Minnesota primary, he said in Chicago he will also enter races in California, Florida, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

"These primaries were selected to provide for expressions of preference on a regional basis in the East, Midwest, South and West," Stevenson said in a statement.

Yesterday produced another entry for the Democratic presidential nomination and, unless all signs fail, tomorrow will turn up still another.

Lausche's Hat In Ring

Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio announced at Columbus he is willing to be his state's favorite son candidate at next August's convention. As he put it in a letter to a backer:

"I will allow my name to be used as the favorite son to whom you and others so disposed will be initially pledged."

Most favorite sons are only that, but Democratic politicians from states outside Ohio have spoken well of Lausche and he could be a winner in a dark horse race.

Kefauver "Yes" Expected

Tomorrow Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) will announce to a Washington news conference whether he'll go after the nomination he lost in 1952. If he says "no" he will surprise a great many people.

Stevenson, the man who won it last time, is the only other announced candidate for the nomination. However, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York has sounded more and more like a candidate.

Two Youths Escape Howard County Jail

ELLICOTT CITY, Md., Dec. 14 (AP)—Two youths knocked down an elderly deputy warden and a trusty late today and escaped from the Howard County jail.

They were identified as Raymond E. Brady, 18, Baltimore, and Harry N. Brengle, 18, Pine Orchard, Howard County. They were awaiting trial—Brengle on charges of rape and Brady on charges of larceny and breaking and entering.

Jet Contract To Ford

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Air Force today announced award of an additional contract to the Ford Motor Co. for J57 jet engines valued at $265,776,509. The specific number of engines was not disclosed.

Hugh Gaitskell Named British Laborite Chief

Moderate Socialist With Pro-U. S. Views Attlee's Successor

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP) — Hugh Gaitskell, a moderate Socialist with pro-American views, tonight won the leadership of Britain's Labor party. He thus became chief of opposition to the Eden Conservative party government and top candidate for prime minister in any future Labor government.

Labor members of Parliament, voting on a party successor to ex-Prime Minister Clement Attlee, gave the fast-rising 49-year-old Gaitskell a clear majority. He received 157 of 267 ballots cast in a three-way race.

Bevan Rejected

The Laborites rejected Aneurin Bevan, left-wing leader often critical of American foreign policy, and Herbert Morrison, faithful party wheelhorse who had served as Attlee's deputy for a decade. Bevan received 70 votes and Morrison only 40.

Morrison, at 67, and Bevan at 58, probably are too old now to have much chance to gain their party's top prize. Morrison heart-broken and in tears, resigned as deputy leader.

Attlee Stepped Down

Attlee served as leader for 20 years before he stepped down seven days ago and accepted an earldom. Gaitskell, the party's recognized intellectual and a former chancellor of the exchequer, was expected to have a long run in the post.

Gaitskell is firmly in the saddle with the backing of the big trades union leaders—the people with great power in the party's national organization. The vote revealed he had the solid support of the party's moderate element in the House of Commons.

48 More Named As Communists

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (AP)—Congressional investigators today listed 48 persons they said have been identified for the first time as Communists at current hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

A college economics teacher on the list and his young wife declined to answer questions about past Communist activity at today's second session of the hearings, pleading the Fifth Amendment. A committee member said he would recommend they be cited for contempt.

A committee aide said testimony today by Mortimer Riemer, 51-year-old Cleveland attorney, and yesterday by Prof. Herbert Fuchs, 50, former law professor at American University in Washington, D.C. supplied the names of 48 persons not heretofore identified as Communists.

Riemer told about a Communist cell in New York in the 1930s made up of 16 layers, including himself.

Fuchs named dozens of persons he said were Communists employed by the U.S. government before and during World War II.

Three of those named by Fuchs and the wife of one were called before the committee today.

Gerlad J. Matchee, now a teacher of economics at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago, and his wife, Margaret Ellen, declined to answer most of the questions posed to them. They contended the answers might tend to incriminate them.

School Bus Smashed By Train

These pupils escaped without injury yesterday when a two-car train crashed into the school bus in which they were riding and smashed away the right front of the vehicle. Two other pupils were hospitalized and three suffered minor injuries. The accident happened on a crossing near Watertown, N. Y. Tangled white lines in foreground are brambles and branches which kept the bus from plunging into a river when it was knocked off the tracks. (AP Photofax)

Britain's Offer Causes Jordan Regime To Fall

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Britain's offer to supply Jordan with new heavy arms and jet fighters if it would agree to come into the Baghdad Alliance caused the fall of that Arab kingdom's government today.

Informants said it was a split in the Jordan Cabinet over whether to accept the British offer that led to the resignation of Prime Minister Said el Mufti.

Young King Hussein has asked the deputy-premier, Hazza el Majali, to form a new government. El Majali is regarded in official British circles as more friendly to the Baghdad Alliance than his predecessor.

Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, chief of the Imperial General Staff, put forward the Eden government's proposals in secret talks the past 10 days in Amman.

Templer reportedly told the Jordanians Britain is ready to reinforce Jordan's famed army, the Arab Legion, with new equipment, including artillery. The British also promised to develop the kingdom's infant air force with modern jet aircraft.

Jordan's membership in the Baghdad Pact would replace the treaty of 1948 under which Britain has provided some officers, training and equipment for the Arab Legion.

Jordan was said to have been assured by Templer that acceptance of the proposals would not prejudice any claims it may have against Israel in the Palestine dispute.

Body Of Navy Pilot Found After Crash

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP) — Searchers today stumbled across the body of a Navy pilot on a farm about 2 miles from the wreckage of his plane.

He was identified as Lt. Cmdr. Charles A. Van Dusen of Washington, D. C. State Police said from all indications he bailed out and his parachute failed to open.

A distress message was intercepted by the Civil Aeronautics Administration before the plane, a single-engine craft, crashed last night about 1½ miles north of Altoona.

Santa Gets Tipsy On 5-Hour Coffee Break, Socks Boss

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Santa Claus got a snootful today and wound up in a fist fight.

A relief Santa took over 45-year-old George Whitestone's chimney at 42nd Street and Madison Avenue to give him a 10-minute coffee break.

Instead of 10 minutes, Whitestone took five hours. And instead of coffee, he took booze.

When he got back to his post, Capt. John Lingerfelt, in charge of all street corner Santas for the Volunteers of America, was waiting for him with the order:

"Turn in your suit."

Santa punched Lingerfelt in the nose and they fell to fighting. Cops finally broke it up.

Russia's Roving Salesmen Home

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 14 (AP)—Russia's roving salesmen went back across the Soviet borders today, leaving behind them the question of just how far they have been able to pull India toward the Communist camp.

The return of Soviet Communist party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin to Russian territory was temporary. They flew off today for Kabul in Afghanistan but, because of bad weather, were forced to put down at Termez, a Russian city 400 miles north of Kabul.

Present plans call for the Russians to return when the weather clears so the civic reception in the Afghan capital can go on as scheduled.

Dispatches from Kabul said that, in contrast to receptions in India and Burma, there was no public enthusiasm and little apparent preparation for the Russians' visit, except for cleaning, painting and paving along key roads.

The Afghan government wants closer links with Russia, but it also wants to maintain ties with the West—and keep American economic aid.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Continental Air Lines, Denver, today announced the purchase of 12 Viscount turboprop aircraft from Vickers-Armstrongs Ltd., England.

Security Study Group Headed By Loyd Wright

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP) — A bipartisan, 12-member commission organized today to undertake a study of how the nation can best safeguard itself against internal enemies and at the same time protect individual rights.

Loyd Wright, a Los Angeles lawyer and immediate past president of the American Bar Assn., was elected unanimously as chairman of the commission. He told newsmen it faced "a terrific job."

Elected as vice president was Sen. Stennis (D-Miss), one of the authors of a resolution adopted by Congress last summer establishing the commission.

Ike Sees No Need For Study

Congress voted to set up the commission even though President Eisenhower had said he saw no need for such a study of the government's security program.

The program has been a continuing source of controversy particularly as it relates to "security risks" in government. Some members of Congress expressed hope that a bipartisan study would "remove it from politics."

The members of the commission were drawn equally from public and private life. They were appointed on Nov. 10 — four each by President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and Speaker of the House Rayburn.

Members Investigated

Congress required that each member be investigated by the FBI and there have been reports that this accounted, in part at least, for the delay in making the appointments. The commission has until the end of next year to submit its final report.

Today's organization session was called on Dec. 3 by Nixon, who has himself been accused by Democrats of using distorted figures on "security risks," for political purposes.

Sudden Soviet Policy Switch Clears Way

12 Non-Communist Nations, Four Red Countries Accepted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 14 (AP)—The United Nations tonight accepted 16 new members at an extraordinary Assembly session. An amazing and unexpected Russian reversal of policy cleared the way for the end of a 10-year stalemate on the membership issue.

In a quick succession of roll-call votes, the Assembly approved 12 non-Communist nations and four Red countries which had cleared the Security Council hurdle only six hours earlier.

Cheering delegates and the new members hailed the final decision as "historic" and a factor for peace.

This raised the total U.N. membership to 76. The new members, eligible immediately to vote and take part in U.N. debates, are the first to be included since Indonesia was sworn in 1950.

The delegates voted unanimously for these non-Communist applicants: Ireland, Portugal, Italy, Austria, Finland, Ceylon, Nepal, Cambodia, and Laos.

Spain Voted In 55-0

Spain, which filed an application only this fall after being barred for years by an Assembly resolution, was accepted 55-0. Belgium and Mexico abstained.

The Arab states, Libya and Jordan were accepted, 56-0 with Israel abstaining.

The first of the 16 to be admitted was Communist Albania, 48-3. China, Cuba and Greece voted against Albania. Bulgaria was approved 50-2 and Hungary and Romania were accepted 49-2. China and Cuba voted against them. Greece, the Netherlands, the Philippines, United States and the Dominican Republic abstained on all of the Communist countries.

The Assembly president, Jose Maza of Chile, announced at 10:18 p.m. EST, almost an hour after the voting began, that the resolution admitting the new members had been adopted.

Japan, Mongolia Still Out

Still outside the U.N. were Japan, vetoed by the Russians yesterday and today, and Outer Mongolia, vetoed by Nationalist China. These countries had been included in an 18-nation package demanded by Russia on a "take-it-or-leave-it" basis.

The Russians vetoed South Korea and Viet Nam yesterday and their applications still are on file. Other countries asking to be admitted to the U.N. are Communist North Korea, and Red Viet Nam.

Events had moved swiftly within the 25 hours from the time Russia and Nationalist China smashed the 18-package deal with vetoes yesterday to the final Council approval today.

Delegates felt frustrated this morning. V. K. Krishna Menon, India, told Maza he would raise the issue in the Assembly by noon. Before he spoke, however, Maza interrupted a session of the Assembly to announce a "great power" had requested an "urgent" meeting of the Security Council to reconsider the question of memberships.

The power was identified quickly as Russia.

Actress Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (AP)—Actress Barbara Payton today pleaded guilty of writing and cashing a bad check for $18.50.

Two other counts involving $111 in bad checks were dismissed. Superior Judge David Coleman set Dec. 27 for probation hearing and sentence.

Danish Newsman Smuggled Dr. Otto John From East Berlin

Editor's Note—Hendrik Bonde-Hendriksen, Berlin correspondent of Denmark's largest newspaper, Berlingske Tidende, sat in a parking lot in Communist East Berlin and waited. He was joined casually, very casually, by a Communist catch who had eluded his Red guards—Otto John, the former West German spy chief. This is Bonde-Hendriksen's own story.

SOMEWHERE IN WEST GERMANY, Dec. 14 (AP)—It was Dec. 12 in Berlin. The hour was 4:52 p.m. Behind us was the Brandenburg Gate. I was driving slowly toward the West Berlin customs control post.

At my side in the car sat Dr. Otto John, slightly disguised with glasses and a pipe. He had my multicolored scarf tied closely around his neck and the hat was deep over his forehead.

It was bitterly cold and the freezing customs officers who recognized my car waved me through. No scrutinizing glance was thrown into the car where the passenger was courageously puffing on the pipe.

Close by the Victory Column I stopped. Tears were streaming down Dr. John's cheeks.

"How wonderful that this nightmare is over," he said in a muffled voice. "I couldn't stand it much longer. If we had been caught I was just hoping for a chance to commit suicide."

I asked Dr. John what actually happened on July 20, 1954, the day when he left the West. He told this story:

"Could any of my friends believe that I had passed the sector line voluntarily? Around 8 p.m., I visited Dr. Wohlgemuth at his Uhlandstrasse clinic. He had promised to obtain a pension for a widow of one of the executed men who had resisted the Nazis. During the war Wohlgemuth had helped my brother who was later executed.

"I had tea with 'Wowo,' as we called him. Later we are to go to another apartment he had in West Berlin. On the way he was to contact a person who should help this widow.

"What happened after that time I don't know. I woke up two days later in Karlshorst. There was a woman doctor at my bed. And there were Soviet Intelligence agents around. I was given an injection and later another one. My head was not clear. I think there is a Mexican plant poison. . . .

"After the Aug. 11 press conference in East Berlin I did a thing that I had been told I must not do. I went down among the newspapermen and whispered to Sefton Delmer of the (London) Daily Express: 'It stinks horribly here.'

"At that time I honestly believed that I was free to go back to West Berlin when the press conference was over. But Soviet agents cordoned me off. I was softly pushed back and immediately after the conference I was flown to Moscow.

"Here I was detained for a couple of weeks and I was almost questioned to death. I didn't disclose any secrets but, naturally,

GM Falsely Advertising Auto Parts, FTC Charges

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission charged General Motors Corp. today with falsely advertising that "genuine Chevrolet" replacement parts are better than the same parts sold by competitors without the "genuine" tag.

The FTC complaint said GM buys many of the Chevrolet parts from other manufacturers, some of whom design the parts themselves and sell to others besides GM.

These parts, the commission added, "are at least equal in all material respects" to those sold by GM.

The parts bought by GM, it said, are advertised as "genuine" with the implication being that all others are not as good. It accused GM of representing that the Chevrolet parts it distributes are designed and manufactured exclusively for GM and said this was "false, misleading and decptive."

These claims "divert business from competitors to their injury and the injury of the public, in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act," the FTC said.

GM was given 30 days to file an answer. A hearing before an FTC examiner was set for Feb. 14 in Detroit.

The question of GM activity in the replacement parts business came up last week during hearings of a Senate Antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo).

However, the FTC said its complaint "had nothing to do with" the Senate hearings, and that it went to work on the case long before them.

A college economics teacher on the list and his young wife declined to answer questions about past Communist activity at today's second session of the hearings, pleading the Fifth Amendment. A committee member said he would recommend they be cited for contempt.

A committee aide said testimony today by Mortimer Riemer, 51-year-old Cleveland attorney, and yesterday by Prof. Herbert Fuchs, 50, former law professor at American University in Washington, D.C. supplied the names of 48 persons not heretofore identified as Communists.

Riemer told about a Communist cell in New York in the 1930s made up of 16 layers, including himself.

Fuchs named dozens of persons he said were Communists employed by the U.S. government before and during World War II.

Three of those named by Fuchs and the wife of one were called before the committee today.

Gerlad J. Matchee, now a teacher of economics at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago, and his wife, Margaret Ellen, declined to answer most of the questions posed to them. They contended the answers might tend to incriminate them.

School Bus Smashed By Train

These pupils escaped without injury yesterday when a two-car train crashed into the school bus in which they were riding and smashed away the right front of the vehicle. Two other pupils were hospitalized and three suffered minor injuries. The accident happened on a crossing near Watertown, N. Y. Tangled white lines in foreground are brambles and branches which kept the bus from plunging into a river when it was knocked off the tracks. (AP Photofax)

Britain's Offer Causes Jordan Regime To Fall

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Britain's offer to supply Jordan with new heavy arms and jet fighters if it would agree to come into the Baghdad Alliance caused the fall of that Arab kingdom's government today.

Informants said it was a split in the Jordan Cabinet over whether to accept the British offer that led to the resignation of Prime Minister Said el Mufti.

Young King Hussein has asked the deputy-premier, Hazza el Majali, to form a new government. El Majali is regarded in official British circles as more friendly to the Baghdad Alliance than his predecessor.

Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, chief of the Imperial General Staff, put forward the Eden government's proposals in secret talks the past 10 days in Amman.

Templer reportedly told the Jordanians Britain is ready to reinforce Jordan's famed army, the Arab Legion, with new equipment, including artillery. The British also promised to develop the kingdom's infant air force with modern jet aircraft.

Jordan's membership in the Baghdad Pact would replace the treaty of 1948 under which Britain has provided some officers, training and equipment for the Arab Legion.

Jordan was said to have been assured by Templer that acceptance of the proposals would not prejudice any claims it may have against Israel in the Palestine dispute.

Body Of Navy Pilot Found After Crash

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP)—Searchers today stumbled across the body of a Navy pilot on a farm about 2 miles from the wreckage of his plane.

He was identified as Lt. Cmdr. Charles A. Van Dusen of Washington, D. C. State Police said from all indications he bailed out and his parachute failed to open.

A distress message was intercepted by the Civil Aeronautics Administration before the plane, a single-engine craft, crashed last night about 1½ miles north of Altoona.

Santa Gets Tipsy On 5-Hour Coffee Break, Socks Boss

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Santa Claus got a snootful today and wound up in a fist fight.

A relief Santa took over 45-year-old George Whitestone's chimney at 42nd Street and Madison Avenue to give him a 10-minute coffee break.

Instead of 10 minutes, Whitestone took five hours. And instead of coffee, he took booze.

When he got back to his post, Capt. John Lingerfelt, in charge of all street corner Santas for the Volunteers of America, was waiting for him with the order:

"Turn in your suit."

Santa punched Lingerfelt in the nose and they fell to fighting. Cops finally broke it up.

Russia's Roving Salesmen Home

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 14 (AP)—Russia's roving salesmen went back across the Soviet borders today, leaving behind them the question of just how far they have been able to pull India toward the Communist camp.

The return of Soviet Communist party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin to Russian territory was temporary. They flew off today for Kabul in Afghanistan but, because of bad weather, were forced to put down at Termez, a Russian city 400 miles north of Kabul.

Present plans call for the Russians to return when the weather clears so the civic reception in the Afghan capital can go on as scheduled.

Dispatches from Kabul said that, in contrast to receptions in India and Burma, there was no public enthusiasm and little apparent preparation for the Russians' visit, except for cleaning, painting and paving along key roads.

The Afghan government wants closer links with Russia, but it also wants to maintain ties with the West—and keep American economic aid.

Security Study Group Headed By Loyd Wright

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—A bipartisan, 12-member commission organized today to undertake a study of how the nation can best safeguard itself against internal enemies and at the same time protect individual rights.

Loyd Wright, a Los Angeles lawyer and immediate past president of the American Bar Assn., was elected unanimously as chairman of the commission. He told newsmen it faced "a terrific job."

Elected as vice president was Sen. Stennis (D-Miss), one of the authors of a resolution adopted by Congress last summer establishing the commission.

Ike Sees No Need For Study

Congress voted to set up the commission even though President Eisenhower had said he saw no need for such a study of the government's security program.

The program has been a continuing source of controversy particularly as it relates to "security risks" in government. Some members of Congress expressed hope that a bipartisan study would "remove it from politics."

The members of the commission were drawn equally from public and private life. They were appointed on Nov. 10 — four each by President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and Speaker of the House Rayburn.

Members Investigated

Congress required that each member be investigated by the FBI and there have been reports that this accounted, in part at least, for the delay in making the appointments. The commission has until the end of next year to submit its final report.

Today's organization session was called on Dec. 3 by Nixon, who has himself been accused by Democrats of using distorted figures on "security risks," for political purposes.

Sudden Soviet Policy Switch Clears Way

12 Non-Communist Nations, Four Red Countries Accepted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 14 (AP)—The United Nations tonight accepted 16 new members at an extraordinary Assembly session. An amazing and unexpected Russian reversal of policy cleared the way for the end of a 10-year stalemate on the membership issue.

In a quick succession of roll-call votes, the Assembly approved 12 non-Communist nations and four Red countries which had cleared the Security Council hurdle only six hours earlier.

Cheering delegates and the new members hailed the final decision as "historic" and a factor for peace.

This raised the total U.N. membership to 76. The new members, eligible immediately to vote and take part in U.N. debates, are the first to be included since Indonesia was sworn in 1950.

The delegates voted unanimously for these non-Communist applicants: Ireland, Portugal, Italy, Austria, Finland, Ceylon, Nepal, Cambodia, and Laos.

Spain Voted In 55-0

Spain, which filed an application only this fall after being barred for years by an Assembly resolution, was accepted 55-0. Belgium and Mexico abstained.

The Arab states, Libya and Jordan were accepted, 56-0 with Israel abstaining.

The first of the 16 to be admitted was Communist Albania, 48-3. China, Cuba and Greece voted against Albania. Bulgaria was approved 50-2 and Hungary and Romania were accepted 49-2. China and Cuba voted against them. Greece, the Netherlands, the Philippines, United States and the Dominican Republic abstained on all of the Communist countries.

The Assembly president, Jose Maza of Chile, announced at 10:18 p.m. EST, almost an hour after the voting began, that the resolution admitting the new members had been adopted.

Japan, Mongolia Still Out

Still outside the U.N. were Japan, vetoed by the Russians yesterday and today, and Outer Mongolia, vetoed by Nationalist China. These countries had been included in an 18-nation package demanded by Russia on a "take-it-or-leave-it" basis.

The Russians vetoed South Korea and Viet Nam yesterday and their applications still are on file. Other countries asking to be admitted to the U.N. are Communist North Korea, and Red Viet Nam.

Events had moved swiftly within the 25 hours from the time Russia and Nationalist China smashed the 18-package deal with vetoes yesterday to the final Council approval today.

Delegates felt frustrated this morning. V. K. Krishna Menon, India, told Maza he would raise the issue in the Assembly by noon. Before he spoke, however, Maza interrupted a session of the Assembly to announce a "great power" had requested an "urgent" meeting of the Security Council to reconsider the question of memberships.

The power was identified quickly as Russia.

Actress Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (AP)—Actress Barbara Payton today pleaded guilty of writing and cashing a bad check for $18.50.

Two other counts involving $111 in bad checks were dismissed. Superior Judge David Coleman set Dec. 27 for probation hearing and sentence.

7-Week Strike Of Airline Flight Engineers Settled

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (AP)—United Air Lines today announced settlement of a seven-weeks strike of AFL-CIO flight engineers and said the engineers would return to their jobs immediately. The air line had been maintaining service without the striking engineers.

The air line said in a statement:

"An agreement to end the flight engineers strike against United Air Lines was reached late today following a meeting of top air line and union officials in Washington, D.C.

"The settlement, culminating a walkout of 252 of United's 460 flight engineers, was reached by officials of United, the AFL-CIO organization, and the Flight Engineers International Assn.

"At the same time a new contract between the United and FEIA was signed.

"Under terms of the contract United retained the right to employ pilot-qualified engineers and to establish crew requirements for future aircraft. At the same time the company extended job security to those who do not already have pilot qualifications by offering to give them pilot training, or, if they do not desire such training, to retain them as engineers."

Danish Newsman Smuggled Dr. Otto John From East Berlin

Editor's Note—Hendrik Bonde-Hendriksen, Berlin correspondent of Denmark's largest newspaper, Berlingske Tidende, sat in a parking lot in Communist East Berlin and waited. He was joined casually, very casually, by a Communist catch who had eluded his Red guards—Otto John, the former West German spy chief. This is Bonde-Hendriksen's own story.

SOMEWHERE IN WEST GERMANY, Dec. 14 (AP)—It was Dec. 12 in Berlin. The hour was 4:52 p.m. Behind us was the Brandenburg Gate. I was driving slowly toward the West Berlin customs control post.

At my side in the car sat Dr. Otto John, slightly disguised with glasses and a pipe. He had my multicolored scarf tied closely around his neck and the hat was deep over his forehead.

It was bitterly cold and the freezing customs officers who recognized my car waved me through. No scrutinizing glance was thrown into the car where the passenger was courageously puffing on the pipe.

Close by the Victory Column I stopped. Tears were streaming down Dr. John's cheeks.

"How wonderful that this nightmare is over," he said in a muffled voice. "I couldn't stand it much longer. If we had been caught I was just hoping for a chance to commit suicide."

I asked Dr. John what actually happened on July 20, 1954, the day when he left the West. He told this story:

"Could any of my friends believe that I had passed the sector line voluntarily? Around 8 p.m., I visited Dr. Wohlgemuth at his Uhlandstrasse clinic. He had promised to obtain a pension for a widow of one of the executed men who had resisted the Nazis. During the war Wohlgemuth had helped my brother who was later executed.

"I had tea with 'Wowo,' as we called him. Later we are to go to another apartment he had in West Berlin. On the way he was to contact a person who should help this widow.

"What happened after that time I don't know. I woke up two days later in Karlshorst. There was a woman doctor at my bed. And there were Soviet Intelligence agents around. I was given an injection and later another one. My head was not clear. I think there is a Mexican plant poison. . . .

"After the Aug. 11 press conference in East Berlin I did a thing that I had been told I must not do. I went down among the newspapermen and whispered to Sefton Delmer of the (London) Daily Express: 'It stinks horribly here.'

"At that time I honestly believed that I was free to go back to West Berlin when the press conference was over. But Soviet agents cordoned me off. I was softly pushed back and immediately after the conference I was flown to Moscow.

"Here I was detained for a couple of weeks and I was almost questioned to death. I didn't disclose any secrets but, naturally,

GM Falsely Advertising Auto Parts, FTC Charges

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission charged General Motors Corp. today with falsely advertising that "genuine Chevrolet" replacement parts are better than the same parts sold by competitors without the "genuine" tag.

The FTC complaint said GM buys many of the Chevrolet parts from other manufacturers, some of whom design the parts themselves and sell to others besides GM.

These parts, the commission added, "are at least equal in all material respects" to those sold by GM.

The parts bought by GM, it said, are advertised as "genuine" with the implication being that all others are not as good. It accused GM of representing that the Chevrolet parts it distributes are designed and manufactured exclusively for GM and said this was "false, misleading and deceptive."

These claims "divert business from competitors to their injury and the injury of the public, in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act," the FTC said.

GM was given 30 days to file an answer. A hearing before an FTC examiner was set for Feb. 14 in Detroit.

The question of GM activity in the replacement parts business came up last week during hearings of a Senate Antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo).

However, the FTC said its complaint "had nothing to do with" the Senate hearings, and that it went to work on the case long before them.

Russia's UN Vetoes Denounced By U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—The State Department today blasted Russia for using the black ball in the U.N., and then lapsed into silence when the Soviets came up with a plan admitting 16 new members.

Lincoln White, department press officer, said he had nothing to say about the 16-member package proposal, approved by the U.N. Security Council late today. He said his earlier remarks still stood.

Those remarks referred to events of yesterday. White charged that Russia took the attitude "that the will of the majority be damned" when it vetoed admission of 15 Western backed countries.

At the same time, he carefully avoided criticizing Nationalist China, which vetoed membership for Outer Mongolia, although a majority voted in favor.

Russia hurled its vetoes yesterday after Nationalist China's delegate blocked Communist-supported Outer Mongolia, wrecking a deal which would have admitted 18 new members, including five Soviet-sponsored nations.

Yesterday's vote on Outer Mongolia was 8-1 in favor of admission, with Nationalist China casting the negative vote and the United States and Belgium abstaining.

In addition to the 13 non-Communist countries in yesterday's package, Russia vetoed South Korea and South Viet Nam, which were added starters.

Today the Russians sprang a surprice by proposing a new package, which included 12 non-Communist and four Red countries, but which omitted Outer Mongolia and Japan.

The Security Council quickly approved this proposal, after Russia vetoed an attempt to add Japan to it. The 16 nations are now considered as good as inside the U.N., since the Assembly is expected to follow the Security Council's lead.

Small Local Unions To Discuss Merger

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)— A group of unions outside the newly merged AFL-CIO are talking about a merger of their own. They have an initial meeting scheduled for Sunday in St. Louis.

Joel D. Blackmon, general counsel of the Confederated Unions of America, an organization of small local unions in various industries, said the St. Louis meeting would be only preliminary to an actual merger convention here in February.

Blackmon said the CUA has approximately 450,000 members but that if all unions interested in the merger go along with it, an organization of about 2½ million members would result.

Ministers Agree On West German Military Ceiling

PARIS, Dec. 14 (AP)—Western European foreign ministers agreed tonight on the size of the army, navy and air force West Germany is to field under NATO.

Sitting as the Council of Western European Union, the ministers representing France, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg endorsed the ceilings for West German armed forces drafted earlier this month by their military experts.

Under the Paris agreements which brought West Germany into NATO, the WEU determines the extent of the Bonn government's contribution.

The limits approved by the ministers were not disclosed. The Paris accords set an eventual ceiling of 500,000 men.

The figures approved by the WEU ministers now go to the Nato Council of Foreign and Defense Ministers. This Council meets tomorrow to lay down the Alliance's targets for 1956.

The Western European ministers also agreed that the WEU Armaments Control Agency will begin operations Jan. 1.

Coal-Burning Gas Turbine Loco Gets First Test In 1956

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Coal interests announced today a coal-fired gas turbine locomotive—the industry's answer to the diesel railroad engine—will complete its first test during 1956.

Col. R. B. White, chairman of the locomotive development committee of Bituminous Coal Research Inc., said the first coal-burning gas turbine locomotive is expected to be under construction by 1957.

The final test work will be carried out in Alco products' locomotive plant in Dunkirk, N. Y.

The new locomotive, first of its kind, uses pulverized coal, burned at high temperature. This produces a heated gas which rotates the turbine, generating electricity which powers the wheels.

21 Rebels Killed

ALGIERS, Algeria, Dec. 14 (AP)—French authorities reported at least 21 rebels were killed today in scattered skirmishes with French forces pressing a cleanup drive against independence-seeking guerrilla bands.

This brought the toll on both the French and insurgent sides to 76 in the past 72 hours, considerably higher than in any comparable period in recent weeks.

'Grim' Scientist Shortage Seen Security Threat

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14 (AP) — The chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission reported tonight the nation's shortage of scientists has become so "grim" that it could endanger "all of our blessings, even our freedom."

Colleges and universities are providing less than half the number of scientists and engineers the country needs, Lewis L. Strauss said in an address prepared for the Nuclear Engineering and Science Congress.

"This figure is made more distressing by the realization that the shortage will become worse before we can possibly correct it," he added. "Soviet Russia, meanwhile, is educating twice as many engineers and scientists as we are."

As one corrective step, Strauss announced, a summer institute for the specialized training of faculty members of American engineering colleges will be opened next June at the Argonne National Laboratory, Chicago.

It will be sponsored by the AEC, the National Science Foundation and the American Society for Engineering Education.

Sixty selected science teachers will be given a two-month course in nuclear engineering, separation chemistry, chemical engineering, metallurgy and nuclear instrumentation, Strauss said. The Science Foundation will provide cost-of-living allowances of about $600 for each of them.

Probe Of John Case Shrouded In Secrecy

BONN, Germany, Dec. 14 (AP)—Dr. Otto John knew he would have to face accusations of treason when he returned from Communist East Germany, a government spokesman said today.

Investigation of the former West Germany security chief's case continued behind locked doors. An Interior Ministry spokesman said no formal charges have yet been made and John probably will be questioned for several more days.

The debonair John, now 46, had been chief of the West German Counterespionage Bureau for four years when he suddenly bolted to Communist East Germany on July 20, 1954.

After 16 months in the Soviet zone he dramatically returned to West Germany Monday.

Production, Employment And Incomes All Advance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Business activity continued to expand last month, the Federal Reserve Board reported today. Industrial output, employment, and incomes all advanced.

The board reported that its index of industrial production moved up one point to a new all-time high of 144 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

In its monthly summary of business conditions, the board also said department store sales were up slightly in November and early December, industrial commodity prices continued to advance, and bank loans continued to expand.

The production of primary metals set a new record in November, with the steel industry producing 99 per cent of capacity. Record steel output has continued to date this month.

The board said auto output, which has resumed near-record rates since completion of model changeovers in mid-November, will total about eight million cars this year.

Furniture production continued to increase during the month, but output of household appliances and television sets declined somewhat. There also was reduced activity in some electrical equipment lines, partly reflecting work stoppages at several plants. Production of "soft goods" achieved a record rate, with the textile, apparel, rubber and paper products industries all showing gains. A moderate decline was noted in the leather products industries, partly caused by work stoppages.

The number of private housing starts dipped to an annual rate of 1,200,000, slightly below the preceding two months.

However, the value of building contract awards was only slightly less than in October.

Together In Hospital

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (AP)— The four surviving Dionne quintuplets are together in a suburban hospital, two of them as patients.

"All are in a happy mood," Dr. G. Cousineau said today. He is medical director at Hospital Notre Dame de l'Esperance in Ville St. Laurent.

The hospital refused to discuss the condition of the two patients except to say they are suffering from a nervous condition and need privacy and rest.

Furniture production continued to increase during the month, but output of household appliances and television sets declined somewhat. There also was reduced activity in some electrical equipment lines, partly reflecting work stoppages at several plants. Production of "soft goods" achieved a record rate, with the textile, apparel, rubber and paper products industries all showing gains. A moderate decline was noted in the leather products industries, partly caused by work stoppages.

The number of private housing starts dipped to an annual rate of 1,200,000, slightly below the preceding two months.

However, the value of building contract awards was only slightly less than in October.

Together In Hospital

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (AP)— The four surviving Dionne quintuplets are together in a suburban hospital, two of them as patients.

"All are in a happy mood," Dr. G. Cousineau said today. He is medical director at Hospital Notre Dame de l'Esperance in Ville St. Laurent.

The hospital refused to discuss the condition of the two patients except to say they are suffering from a nervous condition and need privacy and rest.

'Penny-A-Pound' Plan For Pasteurizing Food With Atomic Energy Is Proposed

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14 (AP)—A new "penny-a-apound" method of pasteurizing certain foods with atomic energy has been proposed by a team of University of Michigan scientists.

They said preliminary experiments indicate that the technique, capable of employing radioactive by-products from atomic energy plants, "might make possible the sale of such items as roast whole chicken, cooked cleaned shrimp, blanched green peas, and other vegetables packaged in plastic containers and capable of being stored unfrozen for long periods of refrigerator temperatures."

Doctors L. E. Brownell and S. N. Purohit declared the commercial development of such a process "would increase greatly the use of refrigeration both in the commercial handling of food and in the storage of foods in the home."

"If foods could be kept for two or three months or longer by such a process," they told a congress of nuclear scientists and engineers here, "the housewife might use an additional refrigerator solely for storage.

"In this regard, the process would be competing with the use of a deepfreezer, but it would be used for food stored for shorter periods. Foods can be stored at 40 degrees more cheaply than at deepfreezer temperatures, and the waiting period required for thawing would be eliminated. It is believed that the added convenience to the housewife of such a process and the savings in prevention of food spoilage would justify its use."

They explained that the new technique, called "high radio-pasteurization," differs from techniques that are under study for employing atomic rays to "sterilize" foods.

They said that while atomic "sterilization" kills all the germs that might be present in the food, the very high doses of radiation required produce undesirable changes in most foods, especially in the odor and flavor of meats and dairy products.

Envisioning special plants in which food would be "high radio-pasteurized" with partially used fuel elements from atomic reactors—fuel awaiting partial "cooling off" of attached fission products before being reprocessed for fuel—the scientists said such fuel elements might be obtained on a rental basis.

Teacher Upheld In Mouth Washing

MINEOLA, N. Y., Dec. 14 (AP) — One of boyhood's traditional agonies has been sanctioned by Dist. Atty. Frank Gulotta.

He refused to prosecute a teacher who forced Johnny Urgo, 10, to wash out his mouth with soap. The boy's parents had complained.

The teacher, John Hartman, 26, didn't like the language Johnny used during a game in a Baldwin, N.Y. gym.

"No cause for criminal action," Gulotta ruled, citing the right of a teacher under the law to use force when it is "reasonable in manner and moderate in degree."

What an impression your posture makes on the people you meet.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Best Things In Life Are Free; Posture Is One Or Them

You will be wearing more than your share of evening clothes during the holidays. And nothing is more attractive than a graceful woman "floating" into a room . . . her very action beautiful to see. She wins every glance.

All depends on the way you carry yourself. Without the graceful, poised carriage, you can make an indeterminate flop of the most expensive gown. One slouch and that new formal can be nothing more than just a dress.

Posture is the cornerstone of carriage. How well you stand in turn affects how well you move. It requires only a small bit of thought and practice, but the time devoted must be consistent and thorough. That means you must think everlastingly of eliminating all posture flaws. Start by sending for my booklet, "Your Posture"—your for 10c in coin and a self- addressed, stamped envelope sent to me at this newspaper.

While you're typing, filing, riding on the bus, doing dishes, listening to a professor in class, or talking with the girls, you can put into effect a few rules for charm . . . charm of grace:

First, straighten up . . . pull your neck out of your shoulders and hold your chin parallel to the floor. Draw your tummy up and in until it feels safely secured and flat as a pancake. Now stretch from the waist up—think of separating the very bottom ribs from the top of the hipbone and enlarge that space. Practice breathing easily but deeply now.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (INS) — About 30 U.S. colleges, and a greater number of high schools, now have accredited courses in fishing. It will be one of the subjects discussed, along with juvenile delinquency and low ages, when thousands of high school principals convene at their next national convention in Atlantic City.

If fishing is a sport, as some insist, it has taken the place of baseball as our national pastime. Last year fishing licenses were issued to 18,580,813 anglers. Salt water fishermen, very oldsters and innocent youngsters, none of whom need licenses, swelled the fishing legions to an estimated 30,000,000 souls. This year there will be more, of course.

Fortunes are being made by men and companies who and which have ridden the coat-tails of the boom, or showed the boom the way to boom. Pioneering and accident and chance have been rewarded bountifully as a considerable bulk of a great nation directs its attention to its streams, lakes, rivers and offshore waters.

Take the case of a physicist named C. G. Havens, and that of a young Austrian-American named Tom Lenk.

Dr. Havens, University of Wisconsin, was assigned during the war to the job of finding a substitute for scarce metal used in aircraft production. Conduits were his special field. Ir time he and his associates produced tough, light tubing made of fiber glass.

"Looks like a fishing rod," a friend remarked. He made an imaginary cast with the length of tubing. "Feels like one, too," he added.

Now for Lenk. He was making $12 a week for the Charles Garcia and Co., importing firm in New York just before World War II. He got his citizenship papers and "greetings" about the same time.

The war took him to the Pacific as, eventually, a captain in artillery. He returned with a lot of new ideas for his firm. So many of his buddies had declared that when the war was over they were going to confine their high adventure to fishing, Lenk foresaw a huge postwar army of Waltons.

He talked his company into (1) a pay raise and (2) importing 500 Mitchell spinning reels from France. He had fished with spinning reels in the old country and felt they would be enormously popular in the U.S. It is virtually fool-proof and foul-proof. Because of its method of winding the line, and the fact that the reel itself doesn't turn, there is no backlash. Lenk gave away 300 of the 500 reels, to get the thing started.

The Mitchell spinning reels Lenk imported called for very light lines. Lenk found strong, hair-thin synthetics. The reels also called for something lighter and stronger than the standard rod.

The orbits of Lenk and Dr. Havens swung together. Havens had the rod, Lenk had the reel, and the people had the yen.

Lenk now heads the Garcia Co. He has become the foremost importer of spinning gear. He also ships in lines made in Germany of playtl, agate spinning rod line-guides, and spinning lures from Sweden. His business will reach the $5,000,000 a year level this year. His fibre glass rods all come from Conolon, a company which grew out of Dr. Haven's research.

That's just one case, of course. Fishing, which is about the only known endeavor in which the federal government helps supply the merchandise — the fish — meant countless millions of dollars to manufacturers of sport clothing, camping equipment, and the transportation industry in general. Today's company executive does not send a salesman to see a hot prospect. He takes the prospect to an unexploited fishing hole, normally in the company plane, and that takes care of the selling.

Ted Williams and Jack Sharkey are better known to fishermen through the country as fisherman than as a great ballplayer and the former defeated heavyweight champion of the world. If Ike (Eisenhower, not Walton) is told he cannot play golf again, he'll become a year-round fisherman and help that game as much as he did golf. I can see him now, lashing that trout stream which replaced the putting green on the White House lawn.

Danish Newsman Smuggled Dr. Otto John From East Berlin

I had to keep talking and telling things. I have never been good at remembering names. Fortunately so. Then I was two months on the Crimea. Twelve months ago yesterday I was back in East Berlin and placed under surveillance of the East German Security Service."

Otto John began to tremble all over. He asked if we would reach Tempelhof in time. I told him that two seats were reserved in the 5:45 plane, one for Dr. Fischer (Otto John) and another for Dr. Vogel (Bonde-Hendriksen) and that we would be in time.

Let me disclose some facts about my connection with Dr. John.

One day I had lunch with Dr. John in the Fredrichstrasse East German Press Club. The subjects we discussed were the political situation, the chances of German reunification, etc. I considered his views somewhat out of proportion and deliberately avoided anything that had to do with his personal affairs.

I had a feeling that something was wrong. I expected that he would let me know when he found the situation ripe for whatever he had in mind.

At a meeting with State Secretary Dr. Strauss, from the Federal Ministry of Justice, I asked him what would happen if Dr. John reappeared in West Germany. Well aware that I often saw John, Dr. Strauss said:

"Tell him he can return without risk. He will probably not be arrested but, naturally, we shall have questions to ask."

Late last October the Copenhagen University Student's Assn. asked me to arrange a lecture by Dr. John in Copenhagen. I went over to East Berlin, called Dr. John's office and arranged a lunch with him.

He was very interested but said he had to ask Russian permission.

Two days later we met at the East Berlin Press Club. Dr. John brought along a person known to both of us. He told me the Russians had turned down the Copenhagen visit:

"They are afraid that I shall jump off the wagon in Copenhagen."

I asked him if he had ever thought of doing so.

"Um Gottes willen (God willing), he replied, simultaneously stepping on my foot underneath the table.

When the third man went to the men's room, John whispered:

"We must talk about how I can get out. I have been working on a plan. Couldn't an Allied car pick me up at the opera one night?"

I told him this involved danger of a political conflict. The third man returned and we agreed to meet again the next week.

We met in a restaurant, and made a lot of noise with the knives and forks to prevent our whispering from reaching any concealed microphones.

"I have to get out quickly," John said. "I can't stand it any longer. If my wife had not encouraged me between the lines in her letters from England I would have committed suicide long ago. Could you help me? They know your car at the Brandenburg Gate. I think I have a plan that will work."

John then told me he had picked Dec. 12 because it was the day after the big Christmas fair had been opened on Marx-Engels Square. The merry-go-rounds and roller coasters were certain to draw a lot of attention and increase traffic across the sector line.

Dr. John said he planned to ask the agents to drive him to Humbolt University and leave him alone for talks with a certain professor. He planned to ask the agents to buy a bottle of brandy for the joint household at the Christmas market. He planned to walk through the university and out near a parking lot.

On Dec. 7 John told me at a lunch at the Newa restaurant that he had tried the plan out with the agents. It worked. He obtained proof that only the agents in the car were assigned to shadow him.

"We dare not stay one night in West Berlin," John said. "They will go all out to find and kill me. We have to get out of Berlin before my bodyguard can sound the alarm."

John said the Communists would not expect him to flee Dec. 12 because he had speeches scheduled Dec. 13-14.

I was to make all arrangements in West Berlin. Last Saturday we met casually in the press club and I managed to whisper:

"Monday at 4:50 p.m. Pan American to Cologne-Wahn 5:45 p.m., Templehof (airfield) 5:20 at the latest."

At 3:30 Monday I pocketed my shaver and toothbrush. On the auto seat beside me were glasses, a pipe and a scarf. I arrived at the parking lot in time, and in the rear mirror saw John walk out of the university. I switched the headlights on and started the motor. Then he was sitting there. With trembling hands he lit the pipe and whispered.

"Get moving for heaven's sake."

We drove on, slowly. There is a 25-mile speed limit in East Berlin. When we passed Wilhelmstrasse, a Communist policeman flashed his red torchlight, signaling us to stop. I came to a halt right at his feet, put down the window and said:

"Good evening, officer; everything is all right."

He noticed the Danish flag on the car and the press sticker, glanced in the back and waved us on.

"This is the end of the democratic sector," says a big sign at the Brandenburg Gate.

When we passed that sign we cried out in unison:

"We are through."

Christmas Tree Warning Issued By Health Dept.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP)—The State Health Department issued its annual warning about Christmas trees today.

The department's Home Accident Prevention Unit, calling the Christmas tree the "main source of danger from the standpoint of fire," urged householders to keep these precautions in mind:

1. Select as small a tree as practical, keeping it outdoors until ready for installation. Then, to keep it fresh as long as possible, set it in water well away from sources of heat. Drilling a hole in the base, and cutting it on an angle helps increase absorption of water. When the needles begin to fall, discard it outdoors.

In choosing a location for the tree, don't set it near a stairway because this provides a draft should fire start. Also, make sure the tree doesn't block any door or exit.

2. Do not place electric trains under the tree. Trees are filled with pitch and resin which may be easily ignited by sparks cast off.

3. Use only Underwriters' Laboratories approved electric lighting sets, making certain wires are in good condition—not frayed. All other decorations should be flameproof or made of glass or metal.

4. Don't plug too many extension cords into one outlet, and never leave the tree lights burning when no one is at home, or when everyone has retired for the night.

5. Provide a switch some distance from the tree for turning lights on and off—never plug or unplug them beneath the tree.

Claims For Jobless Benefits Increase

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP) — The State Department of Employment Security reported today that 3,129 new claims for unemployment benefits were made last week, compared with 3,085 the week before.

There were seasonal increases at Cambridge, where 317 applied for benefits, and at Westminster, where 147 applications were received.

However, at Hagerstown, where the Fairchild Aircraft Division has been reducing its force, only 140 new claims were received last week, compared with 361 the week before.

The department paid out $191,814 in benefits last week to 8,433 claimants, just a little higher than the benefits paid the week before. During the corresponding week of 1954, 20,761 claimants received $506,962 in benefits.

Baltimore Co. Teacher Salary Hike Proposed

TOWSON, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — A special committee of the Teachers Assn. of Baltimore County said it will propose a $400 across-the-board pay increase to the Board of Education tomorrow.

The association said it would propose a scale with a beginning salary of $3,800, increasing to $6,400 in $200 annual increments. An estimated 2,650 teachers would be affected.

The teachers contended that Baltimore County traditionally leads the state in teacher salaries and must continue to do so if it wants to attract qualified instructors.

Although only one fourth of the United States population lives in the northeastern states, they receive nearly half of all lamb and mutton used in the nation.

Three Pickets Not Guilty

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP)—Three union men who had been picketing a strike-bound Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant here were found innocent of disorderly conduct charges today.

They were among 10 arrested Monday at the Wilkens Ave. Westinghouse plant.

Three were found guilty of disorderly conduct Monday and charges against four others were dismissed.

Magistrate Howard Aaron today ruled there was insufficient evidence to justify disorderly conduct charges against Eugene Watts, president of Baltimore Local 130, International Union of Electric Workers (AFL-CIO); Louis Russo, Baltimore representative on the union's national negotiating committee, and Alfred Tomarchio, an IUE member.

Meanwhile, the company said 170 employes have crossed picket lines and returned to work. Samuel Basmajian, international representative of the union, said only 60 production workers entered Westinghouse plants in the area today.

Frank W. Godsey Jr., manager of the Baltimore division of Westinghouse, claimed nearly 200 orders have been filled since the company invited employes to come back to their jobs nine days ago.

Embezzler Sentenced To Nine Years In Maryland Pen

SALISBURY, Dec. 14 (AP) — Clarence M. Disharoon, 31, was denied new trial today and sentenced to nine years in the Maryland Penitentiary for embezzlement of $4,400.

At the same time, his wife Norma, 27, was freed on a charge of embezzling an automobile when the State declined to prosecute.

Disharoon was convicted by a Circuit Court jury last Sept. 23. He was accused of embezzling the money and three automobiles from a Salisbury automobile agency in which he was once a partner.

Disharoon claimed the money and the cars were given him by James B. Adkins, president of the firm, in return for Disharoon's stock in the company.

The Disharoons were picked up by the FBI in Wisconsin in November, 1954, and returned here for trial. They had left Salisbury in January, 1951, and had been unheard from until FBI agents located them in the midwest.

Disharoon, at the time of his arrest, was on probation in Wisconsin from a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Dead Birds Block Up Sewer Line

After receiving a call recently from officials of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Baltimore and Centre streets, about a sewer blocked and water backed up in the cellar, the city Sewer Department investigated and dragged 50 dead starlings from the line.

The following day they returned to the church property and removed the bodies of 35 more birds. This seems to be the most logical reason for the presence of the starlings:

Starlings huddle on spouting of the roof near the point where it drains off. In attempting to keep warm, they huddle closely together. Warm air emanating from the drain pipe makes the spot closest to it the choice one.

So the bird at that point is under constant pressure to keep his perch, so to speak.

This pressure is too much for some who are pushed off and drop down the drain.

Ship At Trail's End

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Navy and Marine Corps training ship Prairie State, a Manhattan landmark since 1924, is to be taken out of service on Dec. 31. The 54-year-old vessel once was a battleship that toured the world in President Theodore Roosevelt's "great white fleet" in 1907.

Beaten Five Times As Demo, Grocer Switches To GOP

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP)—Harry D. Kemper, Baltimore grocer who has five times sought public office as a Democrat, has switched to the Republican ticket and says he will try for Congress next year.

"I've switched," said Kemper who has filed for the Republican nomination for Congress from the 3rd District, the seat now held by Rep. Garmatz, Democrat.

"I was never able to get any support from the big boys uptown so maybe I'll be able to get some support as a Republican," Kemper said.

His party switch, he said, occurred just before the municipal election for mayor last spring. He unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination for that election.

Kemper ran for governor in 1950, mayor in 1951, Congress in 1952 and for State comptroller in 1954, all as a Democrat.

"Upside Down" Maps

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Esso Standard Oil Co. has come up with a new "upside down" map for motorists traveling to Florida. Many drivers like to have their maps pointed in the direction they are going. When driving south, however, this makes the names upside down. The new map fixes this.

About three out of every 10 drivers involved in fatal accidents during 1954 were violating a speed law, says the National Safety Council.

Market Winds Up In Red After Late Sinking Spell

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The stock market had a late sinking spell today and finished well in the red.

Losses went to around 3 points in key places. Gains to 2 were found infrequently. Minus signs predominated more than two-for-one.

The aircrafts provided a prop all day. Defense budget estimates have been kind to the aircrafts. Weakness appeared early in the steels, and that spread to all sections.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks today lost $1.30 at $178.40. The record high is $181.50. The industrial component of the average fell back $2.00, railroads were off $1.20, and utilities were lower by 20 cents.

The 305 gainers were overshadowed by the 647 losers out of the 1,204 individual issues traded.

U. S. & Foreign Securities topped the most active list today up ⅜ at 29⅞ on 83,500 shares. It was at the top of the list yesterday off 2⅜.

It was followed by Benquet Consolidated Mining off ⅛ at 1⅞, Studebaker-Packard up ¼ at 11, Sperry Rand up ½ at 25¾, and General Motors off ⅜ at 46⅞.

Dead Birds Block Up Sewer Line

After receiving a call recently from officials of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Baltimore and Centre streets, about a sewer blocked and water backed up in the cellar, the city Sewer Department investigated and dragged 50 dead starlings from the line.

The following day they returned to the church property and removed the bodies of 35 more birds. This seems to be the most logical reason for the presence of the starlings:

Starlings huddle on spouting of the roof near the point where it drains off. In attempting to keep warm, they huddle closely together. Warm air emanating from the drain pipe makes the spot closest to it the choice one.

So the bird at that point is under constant pressure to keep his perch, so to speak.

This pressure is too much for some who are pushed off and drop down the drain.

County, Municipalities Will Receive $172.797 Of State Income Tax Monies

The Allegany County government will receive more money than it anticipated from the "windfall" of state income tax money collected through the payroll deduction plan.

The Associated Press has reported the State Income Tax Division announced it will distribute $172,797.78 to this county and its incorporated municipalities as its regular share of the income tax money.

In addition its share of this county government will receive $73,823.98 as its portion of the "windfall."

William H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, said that this is $13,823.98 more than was expected.

The state tax officials informed the county commissioners last spring when the budget for this fiscal year was made up that the county could expect about $60,000 in this "windfall."

Incorporated cities, as well as the counties, share in the income tax collected by the state, but the extra money going out this year is distributed only to county governments.

It must be spent on capital improvements within a year or revert to the state's general fund.

Lemmert said one of the capital improvements planned is the redecoration of the interior of the court room in the court house. Bids will be received soon for this project.

Another job needed is redecoration of the interior of the court House. The exterior was just painted, Lemmert pointed out.

Also on the agenda are capital improvements to the County Home, Sylvan Retreat and the County Infirmary, Lemmert added.

A full list of projects will be decided soon by the board, the president declared.

The $172,797 of the regular share that will be distributed to the incorporated municipalities and to the county government is based on the percentage of income tax their residents paid to the state during the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Garrett County will receive $14,511.58 of its share of the regular collections and $6,199.75 of the "windfall."

Ridgeley Music Program Planned

The Ridgeley High School music classes and glee club will present a Christmas program at 7:30 p. m. at a meeting of the high school Parent-Teacher Association.

A dramatization, "A Story of the Christmas Carols," will be presented by pupils of the Seventh and Eighth Grade Music Class, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Woolford, and with James Bobo as accompanist.

Members of the Ninth and Tenth Grade Glee Club will present selections including "Let Us Sing Noel On This Christmas Morn" "Away in a Manger," "Silent Night," "Up On the House Top," and "Jingle Bells," directed by Mrs. Woolford and accompanied by Mrs. Martha Payne.

The program will close with the singing of carols by the audience.

Smoke Fills House

LaVale Volunteer Fire Company was called early yesterday to check the smoke-filled residence of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. O'Rourke, National Highway.

Railway Votes For Payment Of Big Dividend

Dividends totaling $19,250,070 amounting to $108.50 a share have been voted by the directors of the Western Maryland Railway on the firm's first preferred cumulative seven per cent stock.

The dividends are payable December 28 to stockholders of record December 23, the board voted at a meeting in New York yesterday.

Specifically, the board voted dividends of $7 a share each for the years beginning July 1, 1940, and ended June 30, 1955, and $3.50 a share for the six months beginning July 1, 1955, and ending December 31, 1955, covering a period of 5½ years.

The payments eliminate all accumulated dividends on the senior preferred stock and pave the way for inauguration of dividends on all three classes of Western Maryland stock as earnings permit. Dividends on the common stock, however, may have to be deferred until the recently arranged bank loan is discharged.

Of the $19,250,070 total dividend payment on the first preferred, $18,133,279 is payable to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which owns 167,127 shares or 84.2 per cent of the outstanding shares of Western Maryland senior stock.

The huge payment on the first preferred will be made out of the proceeds of the recent sale of 122,597 additional shares of common stock and a bank loan of an unspecified amount, together with other funds of the company. The response to the common stock offering exceeded the company's expectations as all but a few hundred shares of the stock offered to share owners at $41 a share was subscribed by exercise of rights.

Giving effect to the sale of the additional shares, there are now outstanding 661,465 shares of common stock. There are also outstanding 177,419 shares of the 7 per cent first preferred and 61,290 shares of the 4 per cent second preferred. No dividends have ever been paid on either the second preferred or common stock.

Post Office Holiday Rush Gaining Momentum Daily

The amount of mail being handled in the Cumberland Post Office is increasing by leaps and bounds as the postal employes move into the busy holiday mailing season.

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon reported today that Tuesday's cancellations of letter mail totaled 71,730.

Monday, the number of pieces handled by the cancelling machine hit 62,435. Saturday, the figure reached 30,000.

All totals are ahead for the same day last year when an all-time record was established.

Postal officials said the extra hours at the post office Saturday and Sunday were used by many residents to get their parcels on their destinations.

Postmaster Conlon again urged residents to make sure their Christmas cards are addressed properly—full name, street and number, city, zone and state.

The best hours are before 10:30 a. m. or between 1:30 and 3:30 p. m.

Colorado is known as the Centennial State.

County, Municipalities Will Receive $172.797 Of State Income Tax Monies

The Allegany County government will receive more money than it anticipated from the "windfall" of state income tax money collected through the payroll deduction plan.

The Associated Press has reported the State Income Tax Division announced it will distribute $172,797.78 to this county and its incorporated municipalities as its regular share of the income tax money.

In addition its share of this county government will receive $73,823.98 as its portion of the "windfall."

William H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, said that this is $13,823.98 more than was expected.

The state tax officials informed the county commissioners last spring when the budget for this fiscal year was made up that the county could expect about $60,000 in this "windfall."

Incorporated cities, as well as the counties, share in the income tax collected by the state, but the extra money going out this year is distributed only to county governments.

It must be spent on capital improvements within a year or revert to the state's general fund.

Lemmert said one of the capital improvements planned is the redecoration of the interior of the court room in the court house. Bids will be received soon for this project.

Another job needed is redecoration of the interior of the court House. The exterior was just painted, Lemmert pointed out.

Also on the agenda are capital improvements to the County Home, Sylvan Retreat and the County Infirmary, Lemmert added.

A full list of projects will be decided soon by the board, the president declared.

The $172,797 of the regular share that will be distributed to the incorporated municipalities and to the county government is based on the percentage of income tax their residents paid to the state during the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Garrett County will receive $14,511.58 of its share of the regular collections and $6,199.75 of the "windfall."

Ridgeley Music Program Planned

The Ridgeley High School music classes and glee club will present a Christmas program at 7:30 p. m. at a meeting of the high school Parent-Teacher Association.

A dramatization, "A Story of the Christmas Carols," will be presented by pupils of the Seventh and Eighth Grade Music Class, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Woolford, and with James Bobo as accompanist.

Members of the Ninth and Tenth Grade Glee Club will present selections including "Let Us Sing Noel On This Christmas Morn" "Away in a Manger," "Silent Night," "Up On the House Top," and "Jingle Bells," directed by Mrs. Woolford and accompanied by Mrs. Martha Payne.

The program will close with the singing of carols by the audience.

Smoke Fills House

LaVale Volunteer Fire Company was called early yesterday to check the smoke-filled residence of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. O'Rourke, National Highway.

Firemen said smoke backed up by the furnace filled the home. Nine men answered the call at 2 a. m.

Railway Votes For Payment Of Big Dividend

Dividends totaling $19,250,070 amounting to $108.50 a share have been voted by the directors of the Western Maryland Railway on the firm's first preferred cumulative seven per cent stock.

The dividends are payable December 28 to stockholders of record December 23, the board voted at a meeting in New York yesterday.

Specifically, the board voted dividends of $7 a share each for the years beginning July 1, 1940, and ended June 30, 1955, and $3.50 a share for the six months beginning July 1, 1955, and ending December 31, 1955, covering a period of 5½ years.

The payments eliminate all accumulated dividends on the senior preferred stock and pave the way for inauguration of dividends on all three classes of Western Maryland stock as earnings permit. Dividends on the common stock, however, may have to be deferred until the recently arranged bank loan is discharged.

Of the $19,250,070 total dividend payment on the first preferred, $18,133,279 is payable to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which owns 167,127 shares or 84.2 per cent of the outstanding shares of Western Maryland senior stock.

The huge payment on the first preferred will be made out of the proceeds of the recent sale of 122,597 additional shares of common stock and a bank loan of an unspecified amount, together with other funds of the company. The response to the common stock offering exceeded the company's expectations as all but a few hundred shares of the stock offered to share owners at $41 a share was subscribed by exercise of rights.

Giving effect to the sale of the additional shares, there are now outstanding 661,465 shares of common stock. There are also outstanding 177,419 shares of the 7 per cent first preferred and 61,290 shares of the 4 per cent second preferred. No dividends have ever been paid on either the second preferred or common stock.

Post Office Holiday Rush Gaining Momentum Daily

The amount of mail being handled in the Cumberland Post Office is increasing by leaps and bounds as the postal employes move into the busy holiday mailing season.

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon reported today that Tuesday's cancellations of letter mail totaled 71,730.

Monday, the number of pieces handled by the cancelling machine hit 62,435. Saturday, the figure reached 30,000.

All totals are ahead for the same day last year when an all-time record was established.

Postal officials said the extra hours at the post office Saturday and Sunday were used by many residents to get their parcels on their destinations.

Postmaster Conlon again urged residents to make sure their Christmas cards are addressed properly—full name, street and number, city, zone and state.

The best hours are before 10:30 a. m. or between 1:30 and 3:30 p. m.

Junk Operator Enters Race For Senate

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 14 (AP) —A Linthicum junkyard operator filed for nomination to the U. S. Senate today on the eve of his scheduled appearance in court here in connection with zoning law violations.

Henry J. Laque, 31, who was arrested last week on charges he has continued to operate his junkyard despite conviction of violating the county zoning laws, posted a $270 filing fee at the secretary of state's office.

He was convicted in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court last year and drew a six-month suspended jail sentence and a $500 fine. The Court of Appeals and the U. S. Supreme Court denied his appeals.

Laque, who became the third official candidate for the Senate seat now held by Republican John Marshall Butler, said his move was prompted by the recent court actions.

"The government is encroaching on citizen's rights, too far, too long and too vigorously," Laque said. He said he would conduct a campaign "against the government . . . there's too much socialism."

Laque was unsuccessful in his attempt to become a Republican candidate for county commissioner in his only previous political bid two years ago.

What's Your Taste In Holiday Buying?

We suppose in Christmas shopping it's a case of every man to his own taste.

There are those who spread their gift-buying over the whole year and calmly contemplate the final days before December 25 with the knowledge that they at least have their lists taken care of.

Then there are those who, come the day after Thanksgiving or maybe December 1, sally forth to favorite stores and, with a great show of previous planning, clear up the year's gift lists.

Of course everyone is familiar with the hit-or-miss shoppers who tire themselves on endless days spent in shopping forays—"just looking," checking one store's wares against another's, and making only a very few purchases at a time. Of such are Christmas rushes made.

Probably clerks on stores' sales staffs catalogue shoppers in other ways—ways it might be best not to know about. But in our own classification possibly the most human of all are the shoppers who, for whatever the reason, let everything go to the last minute. Come December 24, these souls—sometimes almost frantic, sometimes completely happy—appear in the city's marts and in a swift display of purchasing power buy gifts for one and all.

One such person once explained his refusal to shop earlier. He said his belated buying fills him with a great feeling of Christmas which carries him happily into the next day. Once he did heed the advice to shop early, and he says his Christmas was miserable. His gifts had stood around so long he had lost the zest of giving. He never did it again.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

"The Sure Victory"

Fortunately as the Christmas season approaches, Madame Chiang Kai-shek's little book, "The Sure Victory," appears in the bookshops and no better Christmas book has been written in recent years.

I recall the girl, Meiling Soong, who breezed into Shanghai from Wellesley, whose major interest was poetry in English. She had been in the United States much of her life, having been sent to Macon, Ga., to stay with Bishop Ainsworth there to be reared as an American girl. She was a Southern Methodist, as her mother had been. Her father, Charles Jones Soong, had always lived in the United States, he first coming to attention at the age of 10 as a cabin boy on the U. S. Revenue Cutter, Colfax, Charles Jones, Capitain. He was baptized in Wilmington, N. C., and later peddled hammocks on the roads of southern states, studying at Duke University and later at Vanderbilt in Nashville. He was sent to China to teach English and Bible as a missionary. He settled in Shanghai. Some of his students have told me that he was a brilliant English teacher.

Meiling Soong, before and since she married Chiang Kai-shek, has been a devout Christian. Her mother converted Chiang to Christianity which changed him from a usual Chinese militarist to an ardent social reformer. As I have known him in both phases of his life, I speak not from hearsay but of the miracles that are wrought in personality by prayer.

Meiling Soong wrote this little book, "The Sure Victory," about prayer and then thought that it should not be published. But friends intervened and here is what she says:

"I had great hesitancy about writing this message, for several reasons. One is that I do not want to give the impression that I am a better Christian than I am. After considerable thought I came to the conclusion that no one who has had a unique experience with prayer has a right to withhold it from others. Besides, I believe that the main line of attack against the evils of today is in my hands and in yours—in prayer."

This is the story of a small prayer group on the island of Formosa. Few human beings have passed through all the hells that have been Meiling Soong's life since she left off writing poetry and entered upon a public career with her husband. Added to all her woes is an illness, picked up in the tropics, which recurs and forces her to take refuge in American hospitals for prolonged cures. Nevertheless her faith has grown.

She says:

"Perhaps I should explain a little further what I mean by a nominal Christian. In my mind I accepted unquestioningly and unreservedly the divinity of Christ, His teachings and His grace. I believed, too, that Jesus came to the world to atone for sinners, but frankly this meant little to me. Although He died for me, He also died for everybody. This fact, therefore, had no personal significance. It was like enjoying a cool breeze on a hot summer day. Everybody enjoyed it who felt it. The breeze was nothing personal; it was just there. I was grateful for it but not inordinately so. As far as being a sinner was concerned, everybody was a sinner and certainly my sins were no more wicked than those of the average person. This is what I mean by acceptance in my mind, instead of a truly personal experiencing of faith."

And this she answers:

"As my own faith has grown through meditations and fresh understanding, a deeper meaning has come of our prayers together. Many a time a feeling of spiritual peace seems to exude from within me, bringing completely annihilated self, with the mind in quiet and continuous absorption in the keen contemplation of God. When in this state, one is practically oblivious to the calls of this world, likes and dislikes, honor and name, hate and love."

This little book is inspiring and was written during the past few months when, for a Chinese, it took courage and fortitude to have faith in the future. The little episode of Canada's proposal of admitting the Red Chinese province of Mongolia into the United Nations must have aroused the anxiety of all on Formosa.

But there is no lessening in her faith in the mercy and miracles of God.

Big Romanian Industrialist Refugee Will Try To Re-Enter United States

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—One of the most dynamite-laden refugees in the world is expected to seek re-admission to the United States this week, and one or two very high persons in the United States wish he wouldn't.

He is Nicolae Malaxa, the millionaire Romanian industrialist who was a partner of Hermann Goering's brother and once gave jewelry to Communist Premier Ana Pauker, but who hired Vice President Nixon's law firm and made Nixon's law partner, Thomas Bewley, secretary of his corporation. After that his troubles for a time seemed to vanish.

He got a special bill introduced in Congress by Nixon's close friend Congressman Pat Hillings of California permitting him to stay in the United States.

The bill never passed, however. Suddenly Congressman Francis Walter (-Pa.) intervened, stopped the bill and has now made a thorough probe of the entire Malaxa situation.

The wealthy Romanian is now in Paris, having gone there from Argentina, and is due to try to re-enter the United States today or tomorrow, since his re-entry permit expires December 16. This, however, is only a temporary permit and Malaxa still has no authority to remain permanently in the U. S. A.

The story behind Malaxa and his many moves to pull wires in high-up political places is probably the most amazing of any refugee entering this country.

In Judith Coplon's Purse

When Judith Coplon was arrested by the FBI for delivering papers to a Russian UN representative, in her purse was found a secret Central Intelligence report on Malaxa from CIA Assistant Director Alan R. McCracken to D. M. Ladd, assistant director of the FBI.

The memo was made part of the Judith Coplon court record and is therefore privileged. It gives a detailed account of the way Malaxa had pushed ahead in Romania by bribery of this regime or that, how he played ball with either Communist or Nazis.

"During 1927," stated the CIA report, "Malaxa began his collaboration with the Nazi regime in Germany. He established close relations with German industrialists, including Albert Goering, brother of Hermann Goering. Malaxa gave Goering an interest in all his companies, including the Resitza Iron and Steel Works.

"At about the same time subject (Malaxa) began to subsidize the Romanian Iron Guard, a Fascist organization.

"After the coup d'etat of 25 August 1944," continued the CIA report, "Malaxa attempted to leave Romania, but was unable to secure a passport. Within a short time, however, he had established good relations with the Romanian Communists and the Soviet authorities. He secured the return of three of his factories, and was given additional compensation amounting to half a million dollars for the profits which he could have made during the preceding three years had these factories been under his control."

The report also told how Malaxa came to the United States originally as part of a Communist trade mission. He was the only industrialist whom the Communists favored by returning his property.

Helped By Nixon

Once in the United States, Malaxa got the support of a man who had made his reputation fighting Communists — Richard M. Nixon, then senator from California. Malaxa made Nixon's law partner secretary of the Western Tube Corporation, a wholly-owned Malaxa corporation which proposed building a plant near Whittier, Calif., Nixon's home town. This was in 1951.

Last month—four years later—Congressman Walter sent an investigator, William Wheeler, to Whittier to report on the progress made by the Western Tube Company since its incorporation in 1951. He reported that no building had been built and a concrete foundation had been removed.

"Construction of the factory was predicated on the approval of a loan from the RFC of approximately $30,000,000," Wheeler reported. "The loan was refused.

"Harold Lutz, Bank of America, Whittier, was interviewed and said the Western Tube Corporation never maintained an office in the Bank of America Building, but used office number 607 in the building as a mailing address," the congressional report continued. "This, he said was the address of Thomas Bewley."

Bewley was Nixon's law partner. Though Nixon claimed he had severed relations with his law firm, the Bank of America building directory as late as 1952 showed Senator Nixon, Thomas Bewley and Western Tube occupying the same offices—Rooms 607, 608 and 609. The Whittier phone book for 1952 also showed them having the same phone numbers.

Quickie Tax Write-Off

Nixon went much further. He signed a letter dated September 14, 1951, to Manly Fleischman, defense production administrator, asking him to grant a quick tax write-off to Malaxa's firm. This letter is a matter of official record and I have obtained a photostat copy.

One reason for the cooled relations between Nixon and Senator Knowland was the fact that Nixon got his colleague Konwland to sign the letter, too, asking for the tax write-off, a letter written on Nixon's own committee stationery.

Knowland had no idea of the Communist-Nazi background of the Romanian refugee for whom he intervened to get a tax write-off worth several million dollars.

In other words, Malaxa, the former partner of Hermann Goering and former trade delegate of a Communist government, wanted to build up a business by borrowing $30,000,000 from Uncle Sam, getting a tax write-off from Uncle Sam, and he used the prestige of the Nixon law firm to help him do it.

He did not succeed. It will be interesting to see whether he is re-admitted to the United States and for how long.

Ike's Basic Attitude On Public Service Discussed

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—What is Dwight Eisenhower's basic attitude toward public service — is it the health and convenience of an individual or the needs of one's country which must be given priority?

This question was once answered by Mr. Eisenhower in an episode that various persons in Washington are talking about now because it may throw light on the processes of the President's mind when he comes to the point of making a decision next year on whether or not to serve a second term.

It happened in 1942 when General Eisenhower was in London preparing for the invasion of North Africa. He had as chief of staff of the Allied forces Walter Bedell Smith, then a brigadier general. The latter had served in Washington as secretary of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and also as U. S. secretary of the combined chiefs of staff.

U. S. Needs Come First

When General Smith came to London in October 1942, he took on a series of heavy conferences daily and, after one of these sessions, Winston Churchill warned General Eisenhower that General Smith was looking badly and ought to be sent to the hospital. It was not long afterward that the chief surgeon, General Hawley, told General Eisenhower that General Smith had bleeding ulcers and that, unless he was sent home, General Smith "might be dead in six months."

"There'll be a lot of people dead in six months—in North Africa and in other places," was General Eisenhower's reply as he turned down the suggestion. General Smith, after two weeks of hospitalization, went on to serve as Ike's chief of staff for nearly four years until after the end of the war. He later was for three years U. S. ambassador to Russia and then became head of the CIA and subsequently under-secretary of state. He is now an executive in private business.

There was in this instance, moreover, an intimate friendship which might have induced greater personal concern about the risks involved, but Dwight Eisenhower's point of view has always been that the needs of the United States come first.

"Cold War" Dangerous

It is true that the incident occurred during wartime, but the way things shape up today inside the government — with the Navy and the Air Force constantly on a 24-hour-alert basis — it is well known that the "cold war" is considered in some respects as dangerous as some stages of a "hot war." Certainly, in an international crisis, skillful leadership and experience are so essential that many close observers of Dwight Eisenhower's whole attitude toward public service now are saying that, if the country really wants him to serve on, a sense of duty will persuade him to do so.

President Eisenhower's heart attack hasn't affected his mental capacity or acumen. Officials who have attended recent conferences with him, both of the cabinet and the National Security Council, say that he is even sharper than before in cutting through lengthy debate or rambling remarks and bringing his conferees back to the main point under discussion. They say he is as penetrating in his analysis of public questions, domestic and foreign, as he always has been.

Representative Clarence Cannon, Democrat of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said after a legislative conference at the White House this week: "I was gratified to note the alertness, the aggressiveness of the President in conducting the conference. He was as active as any boy 16 years old. He was the picture of health."

Wilson Did It

The opinion is crystallizing that, in the event that the doctors give Ike advice saying he is physically able to continue in office if he so desires, the President will not seek to be a candidate but will tell the American people something to this effect: "I had no desire to come to public office in the first place. I think there are able men to be found to succeed me. But if the people want me to serve, I shall obey their wish and serve if elected."

It was Woodrow Wilson who in a world crisis in 1916—before America entered World War I—refrained from "seeking" a second term in the presidency. He stood by his statement made as president-elect in February 1913, when he wrote:

"I can approach the question from a perfectly impersonal point of view, because I shall most cheerfully abide by the judgment of my party and the public as to whether I shall be a candidate for the presidency again in 1916. I absolutely pledge myself to resort to nothing but public opinion to decide that question."

Maybe history will repeat itself, and the people themselves will have to decide whether Dwight Eisenhower should be renominated.

When Broady puts a bug in your ear all barbed wire-tapping is in triplicate. It's getting so you are not safe whispering on the Atlantic cable during a storm at sea.

Some of the tappees are a strippeuse danseuse, a Chinese general, a model for heavy winter lavalieres and a talent scout for the Missing Persons Bureau.

It proves that a man will go broke in Manhattan buying cigars for his brothers-in-law.

Some Infections Act Differently In Pregnancy

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most pregnant women can develop a cold or an attack of mumps without endangering themselves or the baby or running the risk of miscarriage. But this does not apply to all diseases because some aggravate pregnancy and pregnancy aggravates some infections.

Should tuberculosis attack a pregnant woman, the disease runs the same course as in the non-pregnant. But when a tuberculous woman becomes pregnant, the lesion may change to a spreading infection that threatens her life. Susceptibility to polio is increased during pregnancy and should it occur, the acute stage is likely to be more serious than in others.

Smallpox is in the same category, and, in addition, leads to miscarriage in 30 to 69 per cent of all cases. Brucellosis, influenza, and scarlet and typhoid fever are better tolerated unless the temperature accompanying the disease is high and prolonged. When this takes place, the baby may be lost.

On the other hand, certain conditions improve during pregnancy. A victim of bronchial asthma may have less wheezing while carrying a baby. The same can be said of arthritis. Improvement occurs during pregnancy and in some instances, all signs of arthritis disappear until the baby is born. This observation led to the discovery of ACTH and cortisone for treating arthritis.

The risk of miscarriage is not great should the woman develop measles, mumps, chicken pox, or rubella (German measles). The exception occurs when fever is high. But rubella carries another hazard when it is encountered during the first three months of pregnancy. The causative virus passes through the placenta and interferes with the infant's eyes, ears, heart, and occasionally the brain.

The baby may be born with congenital blindness, deafness, heart disease, or mongolism. The organs mentioned do not form at the same time. Thus the chance of eye involvement, for example, is greater if rubella comes on in the first six weeks of pregnancy.

Heart trouble is more likely to appear when German measles strikes between the sixth and 12th week of pregnancy. No protective vaccine is available against rubella, but gamma globulin sometimes is given to women who have been exposed to the disease early in pregnancy.

B FRACTIONS

C. L. A. writes: Are inositol and choline vitamins?

REPLY

Yes, they are part of the vitamin B complex.

NASAL ODOR

R. Y. writes: At times I have a bad odor in my nose. What would cause this disorder?

REPLY

Atrophic rhinitis may be responsible, particularly if the disagreeable odor is associated with dryness and crusting of the nasal membranes. Other possibilities include postnasal drip and a disturbance of the sense of smell.

REPLACEMENTS

A. S. writes: Will the pulling of one gray hair encourage the growth of others?

REPLY

No. Whenever one hair is pulled out, and the growth bulb remains, another regrows, and it usually is of the same color.

MANY CAUSES

W. T. writes: Are there other causes of cough besides tuberculosis, bronchitis, and colds?

REPLY

Yes, there are about 60. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on cough.

AWKWARD FINGERS

Mrs. D. writes: When I attempt to pick up anything my fingers stiffen and become awkward. Sometimes I drop a cup or knife, which is very annoying. What could be responsible for this condition?

REPLY

A neurological disorder, such as multiple sclerosis or apoplexy, may be to blame.

THICK RAISED SCARS

M. T. writes: Does the development of a keloid on the skin after an operation mean a person has Negro blood?

REPLY

No. These enlarged scars are more common in dark skinned persons, particularly Negroes, but occur to a lesser degree among all the peoples of the world. Furthermore, the blood of Negroes is no different from the blood of other races.

NOT NECESSARILY

D. F. writes: Is a proctoscopic examination done to detect cancer?

REPLY

The proctoscope is used to examine the rectum for any disease, including cancer. This instrument is like other "scopes." It is a hollow tube with a light at one end and an eyepiece at the other.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellan will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Pentagon Bitterness

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

What might well become an open revolt against the administration's defense and budgetary policies is boiling up beneath the surface at the Pentagon.

On the surface, all is calm. But this calm conceals great bitterness against what seems to many military men a policy of putting a balanced budget in an election year ahead of the requirements of national security.

The bitterness is felt especially in the Air Force. There has been no public outcry from Air Force leaders about the budget recently approved for the next fiscal year. General Nathan Twining, able Air Force chief of staff, has avoided discussing the subject with the press, and so have his subordinates. But Twining's real feelings have become known nevertheless.

Speaks Frankly

Twining attended the National Security Council meeting at Camp David some days ago, at which President Eisenhower approved the decision to hold the defense budget down to around $34 billion. Twining strongly protested the decision, as far as it concerned the Air Force, but to no avail. Shortly thereafter, he met with a number of important businessmen at a club near Pittsburgh, and he spoke his mind very frankly. Although it may be denied for obvious reasons, what the Air Force chief of staff said is reliably reported about as follows:

He remarked flatly that he was getting to the point where he could not "stand all the double talk much longer." He said that 140 to 150 air wings were absolutely required for the defense of the United States. But, he said, the Air Force was not getting enough funds to maintain much more than 50 wings of truly modern aircraft in top operational shape.

Twining went on to say that the trouble was that strong and persuasive men like Treasury Secretary George Humphrey always got to the President first, with the arguments for maximum economy. Thereafter it was almost impossible to reach the President with the arguments for the other side.

Explosion Likely

The Air Force chief of staff said that he was deeply worried not only about the Air Force, but about the other services as well. With the Russians producing 100 submarines a year, he said, the Navy was being held way down, and so was the Army. Finally, Twining remarked in effect that he would not take his case to the public on his own initiative, but that, if asked his views before a congressional committee, he would love to speak his mind.

It is virtually inevitable that Twining will be asked his views by a congressional committee. When that happens something of an explosion, with political implications, seems bound to occur.

It is widely believed in the Air Force that a "stretch-out" of already available funds has been ordered on new spending, in order to make possible a politically desirable balanced budget. According to the Air Force men, the stretch-out delays procurement, and operations, maintenance, the modernization program and research and development are all suffering disastrously.

The bitterness of the military is by no means confined to the Air Force, however. For example, there is much resentment in the Army at the official claim that the ground forces are being maintained at 19 divisions, which sounds like a respectable force.

Actually, two divisions are "static," which means that they are composed of odds and ends of units from Alaska to the Panama Canal. They could not conceivably take the field as organized combat divisions in case of war. Nor could the five training divisions. That leaves 12 divisions capable of actually fighting.

Weak Ready Reserve

Most of these 12 are already committed to Europe or Asia, and many of the remainder are under strength, leaving a frighteningly weak ready reserve. The new nuclear weapons, moreover, have transformed ground warfare far more completely than generally realized. But the task of equipping and training our ground forces for nuclear war is going forward only on a token basis, for lack of funds. By contrast, the Russians have approximately 200 ready divisions which are rapidly being trained and equipped for atomic combat.

On the other side, it can and no doubt will be said that the military always over-estimate their requirements, and that President Eisenhower knows something of military matters. But it will be a lot healthier when the concealed bitterness in the Pentagon is aired openly, and the administration defense policies publicly debated. Indeed, the sooner the better, in view of the frightening way in which the world situation is deteriorating.

What's Your Taste In Holiday Buying?

We suppose in Christmas shopping it's a case of every man to his own taste.

There are those who spread their gift-buying over the whole year and calmly contemplate the final days before December 25 with the knowledge that they at least have their lists taken care of.

Then there are those who, come the day after Thanksgiving or maybe December 1, sally forth to favorite stores and, with a great show of previous planning, clear up the year's gift lists.

Of course everyone is familiar with the hit-or-miss shoppers who tire themselves on endless days spent in shopping forays—"just looking," checking one store's wares against another's, and making only a very few purchases at a time. Of such are Christmas rushes made.

Probably clerks on stores' sales staffs catalogue shoppers in other ways—ways it might be best not to know about. But in our own classification possibly the most human of all are the shoppers who, for whatever the reason, let everything go to the last minute. Come December 24, these souls—sometimes almost frantic, sometimes completely happy—appear in the city's marts and in a swift display of purchasing power buy gifts for one and all.

One such person once explained his refusal to shop earlier. He said his belated buying fills him with a great feeling of Christmas which carries him happily into the next day. Once he did heed the advice to shop early, and he says his Christmas was miserable. His gifts had stood around so long he had lost the zest of giving. He never did it again.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

"The Sure Victory"

Fortunately as the Christmas season approaches, Madame Chiang Kai-shek's little book, "The Sure Victory," appears in the bookshops and no better Christmas book has been written in recent years.

I recall the girl, Meiling Soong, who breezed into Shanghai from Wellesley, whose major interest was poetry in English. She had been in the United States much of her life, having been sent to Macon, Ga., to stay with Bishop Ainsworth there to be reared as an American girl. She was a Southern Methodist, as her mother had been. Her father, Charles Jones Soong, had always lived in the United States, he first coming to attention at the age of 10 as a cabin boy on the U. S. Revenue Cutter, Colfax, Charles Jones, Capitain. He was baptized in Wilmington, N. C., and later peddled hammocks on the roads of southern states, studying at Duke University and later at Vanderbilt in Nashville. He was sent to China to teach English and Bible as a missionary. He settled in Shanghai. Some of his students have told me that he was a brilliant English teacher.

Meiling Soong, before and since she married Chiang Kai-shek, has been a devout Christian. Her mother converted Chiang to Christianity which changed him from a usual Chinese militarist to an ardent social reformer. As I have known him in both phases of his life, I speak not from hearsay but of the miracles that are wrought in personality by prayer.

Meiling Soong wrote this little book, "The Sure Victory," about prayer and then thought that it should not be published. But friends intervened and here is what she says:

"I had great hesitancy about writing this message, for several reasons. One is that I do not want to give the impression that I am a better Christian than I am. After considerable thought I came to the conclusion that no one who has had a unique experience with prayer has a right to withhold it from others. Besides, I believe that the main line of attack against the evils of today is in my hands and in yours—in prayer."

This is the story of a small prayer group on the island of Formosa. Few human beings have passed through all the hells that have been Meiling Soong's life since she left off writing poetry and entered upon a public career with her husband. Added to all her woes is an illness, picked up in the tropics, which recurs and forces her to take refuge in American hospitals for prolonged cures. Nevertheless her faith has grown.

She says:

"Perhaps I should explain a little further what I mean by a nominal Christian. In my mind I accepted unquestioningly and unreservedly the divinity of Christ, His teachings and His grace. I believed, too, that Jesus came to the world to atone for sinners, but frankly this meant little to me. Although He died for me, He also died for everybody. This fact, therefore, had no personal significance. It was like enjoying a cool breeze on a hot summer day. Everybody enjoyed it who felt it. The breeze was nothing personal; it was just there. I was grateful for it but not inordinately so. As far as being a sinner was concerned, everybody was a sinner and certainly my sins were no more wicked than those of the average person. This is what I mean by acceptance in my mind, instead of a truly personal experiencing of faith."

And this she answers:

"As my own faith has grown through meditations and fresh understanding, a deeper meaning has come of our prayers together. Many a time a feeling of spiritual peace seems to exude from within me, bringing completely annihilated self, with the mind in quiet and continuous absorption in the keen contemplation of God. When in this state, one is practically oblivious to the calls of this world, likes and dislikes, honor and name, hate and love."

This little book is inspiring and was written during the past few months when, for a Chinese, it took courage and fortitude to have faith in the future. The little episode of Canada's proposal of admitting the Red Chinese province of Mongolia into the United Nations must have aroused the anxiety of all on Formosa.

But there is no lessening in her faith in the mercy and miracles of God.

Big Romanian Industrialist Refugee Will Try To Re-Enter United States

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—One of the most dynamite-laden refugees in the world is expected to seek re-admission to the United States this week, and one or two very high persons in the United States wish he wouldn't.

He is Nicolae Malaxa, the millionaire Romanian industrialist who was a partner of Hermann Goering's brother and once gave jewelry to Communist Premier Ana Pauker, but who hired Vice President Nixon's law firm and made Nixon's law partner, Thomas Bewley, secretary of his corporation. After that his troubles for a time seemed to vanish.

He got a special bill introduced in Congress by Nixon's close friend Congressman Pat Hillings of California permitting him to stay in the United States.

The bill never passed, however. Suddenly Congressman Francis Walter (-Pa.) intervened, stopped the bill and has now made a thorough probe of the entire Malaxa situation.

The wealthy Romanian is now in Paris, having gone there from Argentina, and is due to try to re-enter the United States today or tomorrow, since his re-entry permit expires December 16. This, however, is only a temporary permit and Malaxa still has no authority to remain permanently in the U. S. A.

The story behind Malaxa and his many moves to pull wires in high-up political places is probably the most amazing of any refugee entering this country.

In Judith Coplon's Purse

When Judith Coplon was arrested by the FBI for delivering papers to a Russian UN representative, in her purse was found a secret Central Intelligence report on Malaxa from CIA Assistant Director Alan R. McCracken to D. M. Ladd, assistant director of the FBI.

The memo was made part of the Judith Coplon court record and is therefore privileged. It gives a detailed account of the way Malaxa had pushed ahead in Romania by bribery of this regime or that, how he played ball with either Communist or Nazis.

"During 1927," stated the CIA report, "Malaxa began his collaboration with the Nazi regime in Germany. He established close relations with German industrialists, including Albert Goering, brother of Hermann Goering. Malaxa gave Goering an interest in all his companies, including the Resitza Iron and Steel Works.

"At about the same time subject (Malaxa) began to subsidize the Romanian Iron Guard, a Fascist organization.

"After the coup d'etat of 25 August 1944," continued the CIA report, "Malaxa attempted to leave Romania, but was unable to secure a passport. Within a short time, however, he had established good relations with the Romanian Communists and the Soviet authorities. He secured the return of three of his factories, and was given additional compensation amounting to half a million dollars for the profits which he could have made during the preceding three years had these factories been under his control."

The report also told how Malaxa came to the United States originally as part of a Communist trade mission. He was the only industrialist whom the Communists favored by returning his property.

Helped By Nixon

Once in the United States, Malaxa got the support of a man who had made his reputation fighting Communists — Richard M. Nixon, then senator from California. Malaxa made Nixon's law partner secretary of the Western Tube Corporation, a wholly-owned Malaxa corporation which proposed building a plant near Whittier, Calif., Nixon's home town. This was in 1951.

Last month—four years later—Congressman Walter sent an investigator, William Wheeler, to Whittier to report on the progress made by the Western Tube Company since its incorporation in 1951. He reported that no building had been built and a concrete foundation had been removed.

"Construction of the factory was predicated on the approval of a loan from the RFC of approximately $30,000,000," Wheeler reported. "The loan was refused.

"Harold Lutz, Bank of America, Whittier, was interviewed and said the Western Tube Corporation never maintained an office in the Bank of America Building, but used office number 607 in the building as a mailing address," the congressional report continued. "This, he said was the address of Thomas Bewley."

Bewley was Nixon's law partner. Though Nixon claimed he had severed relations with his law firm, the Bank of America building directory as late as 1952 showed Senator Nixon, Thomas Bewley and Western Tube occupying the same offices—Rooms 607, 608 and 609. The Whittier phone book for 1952 also showed them having the same phone numbers.

Quickie Tax Write-Off

Nixon went much further. He signed a letter dated September 14, 1951, to Manly Fleischman, defense production administrator, asking him to grant a quick tax write-off to Malaxa's firm. This letter is a matter of official record and I have obtained a photostat copy.

One reason for the cooled relations between Nixon and Senator Knowland was the fact that Nixon got his colleague Konwland to sign the letter, too, asking for the tax write-off, a letter written on Nixon's own committee stationery.

Knowland had no idea of the Communist-Nazi background of the Romanian refugee for whom he intervened to get a tax write-off worth several million dollars.

In other words, Malaxa, the former partner of Hermann Goering and former trade delegate of a Communist government, wanted to build up a business by borrowing $30,000,000 from Uncle Sam, getting a tax write-off from Uncle Sam, and he used the prestige of the Nixon law firm to help him do it.

He did not succeed. It will be interesting to see whether he is re-admitted to the United States and for how long.

Ike's Basic Attitude On Public Service Discussed

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—What is Dwight Eisenhower's basic attitude toward public service — is it the health and convenience of an individual or the needs of one's country which must be given priority?

This question was once answered by Mr. Eisenhower in an episode that various persons in Washington are talking about now because it may throw light on the processes of the President's mind when he comes to the point of making a decision next year on whether or not to serve a second term.

It happened in 1942 when General Eisenhower was in London preparing for the invasion of North Africa. He had as chief of staff of the Allied forces Walter Bedell Smith, then a brigadier general. The latter had served in Washington as secretary of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and also as U. S. secretary of the combined chiefs of staff.

U. S. Needs Come First

When General Smith came to London in October 1942, he took on a series of heavy conferences daily and, after one of these sessions, Winston Churchill warned General Eisenhower that General Smith was looking badly and ought to be sent to the hospital. It was not long afterward that the chief surgeon, General Hawley, told General Eisenhower that General Smith had bleeding ulcers and that, unless he was sent home, General Smith "might be dead in six months."

"There'll be a lot of people dead in six months—in North Africa and in other places," was General Eisenhower's reply as he turned down the suggestion. General Smith, after two weeks of hospitalization, went on to serve as Ike's chief of staff for nearly four years until after the end of the war. He later was for three years U. S. ambassador to Russia and then became head of the CIA and subsequently under-secretary of state. He is now an executive in private business.

There was in this instance, moreover, an intimate friendship which might have induced greater personal concern about the risks involved, but Dwight Eisenhower's point of view has always been that the needs of the United States come first.

"Cold War" Dangerous

It is true that the incident occurred during wartime, but the way things shape up today inside the government — with the Navy and the Air Force constantly on a 24-hour-alert basis — it is well known that the "cold war" is considered in some respects as dangerous as some stages of a "hot war." Certainly, in an international crisis, skillful leadership and experience are so essential that many close observers of Dwight Eisenhower's whole attitude toward public service now are saying that, if the country really wants him to serve on, a sense of duty will persuade him to do so.

President Eisenhower's heart attack hasn't affected his mental capacity or acumen. Officials who have attended recent conferences with him, both of the cabinet and the National Security Council, say that he is even sharper than before in cutting through lengthy debate or rambling remarks and bringing his conferees back to the main point under discussion. They say he is as penetrating in his analysis of public questions, domestic and foreign, as he always has been.

Representative Clarence Cannon, Democrat of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said after a legislative conference at the White House this week: "I was gratified to note the alertness, the aggressiveness of the President in conducting the conference. He was as active as any boy 16 years old. He was the picture of health."

Wilson Did It

The opinion is crystallizing that, in the event that the doctors give Ike advice saying he is physically able to continue in office if he so desires, the President will not seek to be a candidate but will tell the American people something to this effect: "I had no desire to come to public office in the first place. I think there are able men to be found to succeed me. But if the people want me to serve, I shall obey their wish and serve if elected."

It was Woodrow Wilson who in a world crisis in 1916—before America entered World War I—refrained from "seeking" a second term in the presidency. He stood by his statement made as president-elect in February 1913, when he wrote:

"I can approach the question from a perfectly impersonal point of view, because I shall most cheerfully abide by the judgment of my party and the public as to whether I shall be a candidate for the presidency again in 1916. I absolutely pledge myself to resort to nothing but public opinion to decide that question."

Maybe history will repeat itself, and the people themselves will have to decide whether Dwight Eisenhower should be renominated.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Subscribers to New York tapped telephones are taking lessons in ventriloquism. Everybody claims the wrong Broady jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge.

When Broady puts a bug in your ear all barbed wire-tapping is in triplicate. It's getting so you are not safe whispering on the Atlantic cable during a storm at sea.

Some of the tappees are a strippeuse danseuse, a Chinese general, a model for heavy winter lavalieres and a talent scout for the Missing Persons Bureau.

It proves that a man will go broke in Manhattan buying cigars for his brothers-in-law.

And a wife cannot trust her husband any further than a slide on a rug.

The last time I talked on my tapped wire I asked what time it was. And got Daylight Saving, Eastern Standard, Rocky Mountain and California prime.

Some Infections Act Differently In Pregnancy

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most pregnant women can develop a cold or an attack of mumps without endangering themselves or the baby or running the risk of miscarriage. But this does not apply to all diseases because some aggravate pregnancy and pregnancy aggravates some infections.

Should tuberculosis attack a pregnant woman, the disease runs the same course as in the non-pregnant. But when a tuberculous woman becomes pregnant, the lesion may change to a spreading infection that threatens her life. Susceptibility to polio is increased during pregnancy and should it occur, the acute stage is likely to be more serious than in others.

Smallpox is in the same category, and, in addition, leads to miscarriage in 30 to 69 per cent of all cases. Brucellosis, influenza, and scarlet and typhoid fever are better tolerated unless the temperature accompanying the disease is high and prolonged. When this takes place, the baby may be lost.

On the other hand, certain conditions improve during pregnancy. A victim of bronchial asthma may have less wheezing while carrying a baby. The same can be said of arthritis. Improvement occurs during pregnancy and in some instances, all signs of arthritis disappear until the baby is born. This observation led to the discovery of ACTH and cortisone for treating arthritis.

The risk of miscarriage is not great should the woman develop measles, mumps, chicken pox, or rubella (German measles). The exception occurs when fever is high. But rubella carries another hazard when it is encountered during the first three months of pregnancy. The causative virus passes through the placenta and interferes with the infant's eyes, ears, heart, and occasionally the brain.

The baby may be born with congenital blindness, deafness, heart disease, or mongolism. The organs mentioned do not form at the same time. Thus the chance of eye involvement, for example, is greater if rubella comes on in the first six weeks of pregnancy.

Heart trouble is more likely to appear when German measles strikes between the sixth and 12th week of pregnancy. No protective vaccine is available against rubella, but gamma globulin sometimes is given to women who have been exposed to the disease early in pregnancy.

B FRACTIONS

C. L. A. writes: Are inositol and choline vitamins?

REPLY

Yes, they are part of the vitamin B complex.

NASAL ODOR

R. Y. writes: At times I have a bad odor in my nose. What would cause this disorder?

REPLY

Atrophic rhinitis may be responsible, particularly if the disagreeable odor is associated with dryness and crusting of the nasal membranes. Other possibilities include postnasal drip and a disturbance of the sense of smell.

REPLACEMENTS

A. S. writes: Will the pulling of one gray hair encourage the growth of others?

REPLY

No. Whenever one hair is pulled out, and the growth bulb remains, another regrows, and it usually is of the same color.

MANY CAUSES

W. T. writes: Are there other causes of cough besides tuberculosis, bronchitis, and colds?

REPLY

Yes, there are about 60. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on cough.

AWKWARD FINGERS

Mrs. D. writes: When I attempt to pick up anything my fingers stiffen and become awkward. Sometimes I drop a cup or knife, which is very annoying. What could be responsible for this condition?

REPLY

A neurological disorder, such as multiple sclerosis or apoplexy, may be to blame.

THICK RAISED SCARS

M. T. writes: Does the development of a keloid on the skin after an operation mean a person has Negro blood?

REPLY

No. These enlarged scars are more common in dark skinned persons, particularly Negroes, but occur to a lesser degree among all the peoples of the world. Furthermore, the blood of Negroes is no different from the blood of other races.

NOT NECESSARILY

D. F. writes: Is a proctoscopic examination done to detect cancer?

REPLY

The proctoscope is used to examine the rectum for any disease, including cancer. This instrument is like other "scopes." It is a hollow tube with a light at one end and an eyepiece at the other.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellan will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Pentagon Bitterness

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

What might well become an open revolt against the administration's defense and budgetary policies is boiling up beneath the surface at the Pentagon.

On the surface, all is calm. But this calm conceals great bitterness against what seems to many military men a policy of putting a balanced budget in an election year ahead of the requirements of national security.

The bitterness is felt especially in the Air Force. There has been no public outcry from Air Force leaders about the budget recently approved for the next fiscal year. General Nathan Twining, able Air Force chief of staff, has avoided discussing the subject with the press, and so have his subordinates. But Twining's real feelings have become known nevertheless.

Speaks Frankly

Twining attended the National Security Council meeting at Camp David some days ago, at which President Eisenhower approved the decision to hold the defense budget down to around $34 billion. Twining strongly protested the decision, as far as it concerned the Air Force, but to no avail. Shortly thereafter, he met with a number of important businessmen at a club near Pittsburgh, and he spoke his mind very frankly. Although it may be denied for obvious reasons, what the Air Force chief of staff said is reliably reported about as follows:

He remarked flatly that he was getting to the point where he could not "stand all the double talk much longer." He said that 140 to 150 air wings were absolutely required for the defense of the United States. But, he said, the Air Force was not getting enough funds to maintain much more than 50 wings of truly modern aircraft in top operational shape.

Twining went on to say that the trouble was that strong and persuasive men like Treasury Secretary George Humphrey always got to the President first, with the arguments for maximum economy. Thereafter it was almost impossible to reach the President with the arguments for the other side.

Explosion Likely

The Air Force chief of staff said that he was deeply worried not only about the Air Force, but about the other services as well. With the Russians producing 100 submarines a year, he said, the Navy was being held way down, and so was the Army. Finally, Twining remarked in effect that he would not take his case to the public on his own initiative, but that, if asked his views before a congressional committee, he would love to speak his mind.

It is virtually inevitable that Twining will be asked his views by a congressional committee. When that happens something of an explosion, with political implications, seems bound to occur.

It is widely believed in the Air Force that a "stretch-out" of already available funds has been ordered on new spending, in order to make possible a politically desirable balanced budget. According to the Air Force men, the stretch-out delays procurement, and operations, maintenance, the modernization program and research and development are all suffering disastrously.

The bitterness of the military is by no means confined to the Air Force, however. For example, there is much resentment in the Army at the official claim that the ground forces are being maintained at 19 divisions, which sounds like a respectable force.

Actually, two divisions are "static," which means that they are composed of odds and ends of units from Alaska to the Panama Canal. They could not conceivably take the field as organized combat divisions in case of war. Nor could the five training divisions. That leaves 12 divisions capable of actually fighting.

Weak Ready Reserve

Most of these 12 are already committed to Europe or Asia, and many of the remainder are under strength, leaving a frighteningly weak ready reserve. The new nuclear weapons, moreover, have transformed ground warfare far more completely than generally realized. But the task of equipping and training our ground forces for nuclear war is going forward only on a token basis, for lack of funds. By contrast, the Russians have approximately 200 ready divisions which are rapidly being trained and equipped for atomic combat.

On the other side, it can and no doubt will be said that the military always over-estimate their requirements, and that President Eisenhower knows something of military matters. But it will be a lot healthier when the concealed bitterness in the Pentagon is aired openly, and the administration defense policies publicly debated. Indeed, the sooner the better, in view of the frightening way in which the world situation is deteriorating.

Ninety-nine of the donors came from Moorefield; 1 from Fisher; 2 from Rio; 1 from Kessel, 2 from Fabius; 3 from Mathias; 1 from Old Fields; 2 from Purgitsville; and 1 from Westminster, Md. Of the donors, 93 had given blood previously while 19 were giving for the first time.

Local volunteers, who assisted with the Bloodmobile, were Mrs. W. J. Teets in charge; Mrs. R. E. Fisher, reception; Mrs. A. C. McNeill, Mrs. Irvin Bowman registration; Mrs. Joe Welton, Mrs. Thurman Reynolds, Mrs. William Goetz, nurses; Mrs. Ruth Belt, juice; Mrs. John Harmon, Mrs. Ashby Scea, bottles; Mrs. H. G. Baby Clinic

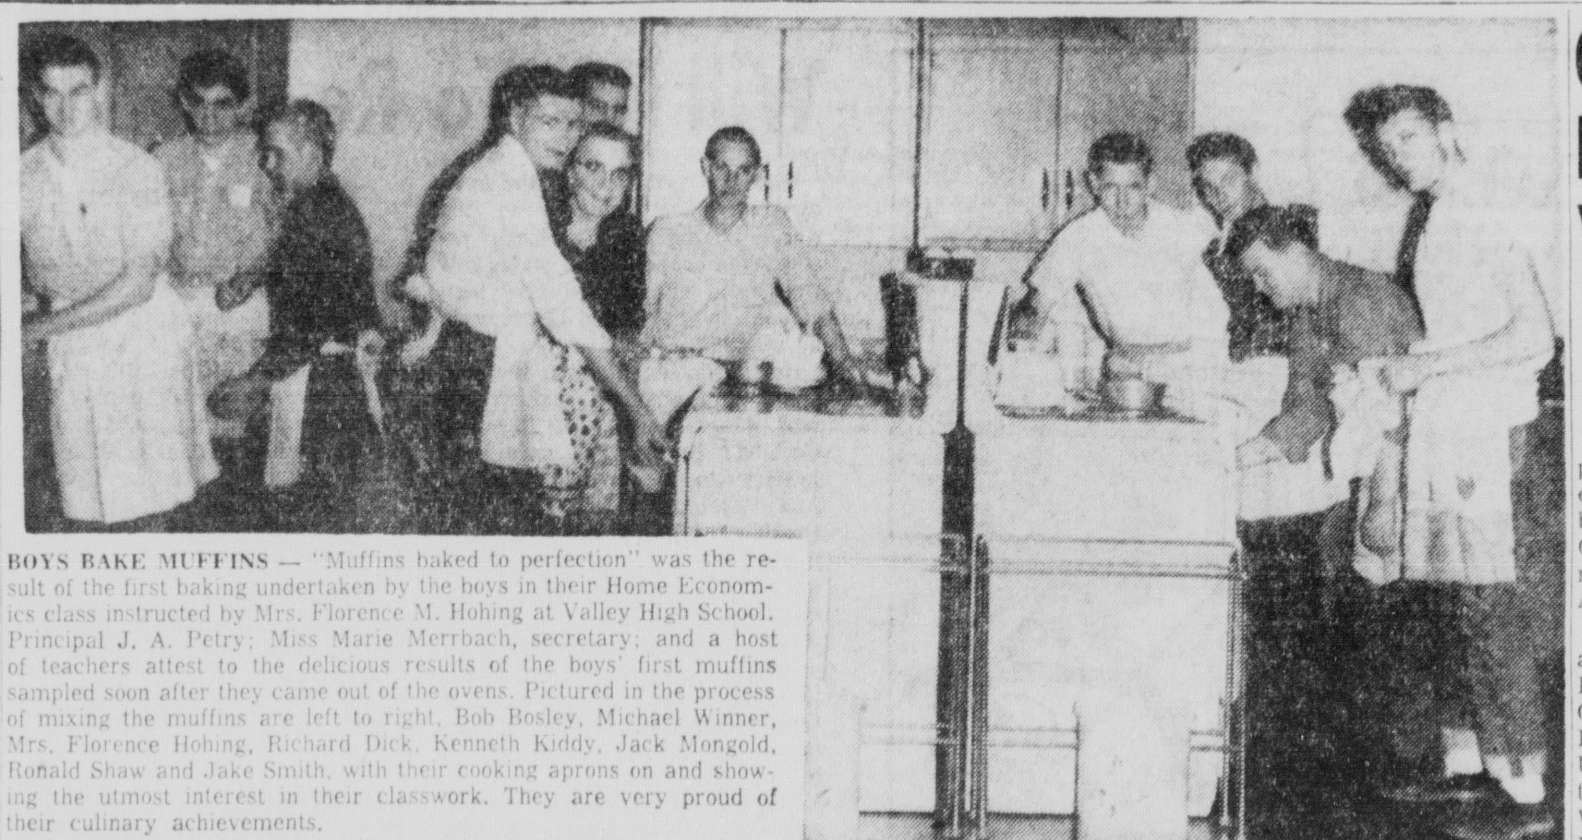
LONACONING — Baby Clinic will be Friday, December 16, beginning at 9:30 a. m. at the Lonaconing Health Center.



BOYS BAKE MUFFINS — "Muffins baked to perfection" was the result of the first baking undertaken by the boys in their Home Economics class instructed by Mrs. Florence M. Hohing at Valley High School. Principal J. A. Petry; Miss Marie Merrbach, secretary; and a host of teachers attest to the delicious results of the boys' first muffins sampled soon after they came out of the ovens. Pictured in the process of mixing the muffins are left to right, Bob Bosley, Michael Winner, Mrs. Florence Hohing, Richard Dick, Kenneth Kiddy, Jack Mongold, Ronald Shaw and Jake Smith, with their cooking aprons on and showing the utmost interest in their classwork. They are very proud of their culinary achievements.

GIRLS STUDY SHOP — Joseph K. Haugen is instructing the first girls class in Industrial Arts at Valley High School, underway for the ensuing six weeks. A study of electrical appliances used in the home, with dangers encountered using the appliances, safety rules, the purpose and proper use of fuses as well as the care, repair and refinishing of home furniture and elementary plastics, will be included. Pictured left to right are Jean Warnick, Clara Shockey, Patsy Kelly, Carlene Boettcher, Eloise Duckworth, Glenna Foote, Norma Spiker, Pearl Wiland, Doris O'Haver, Maxine Armstrong, Joseph K. Haugen and Katherine Green.

Lab School Offers Christmas Program

FROSTBURG — The annual Christmas program of the College Laboratory School will be given in the school auditorium at 1:30 p. m. Friday.

Parents and friends of the children may attend. The school will close for the Christmas vacation Tuesday, December 20.

Home Ec. Class Holds Yule Party

WESTERNPORT — The ninth grade girls of the home economic class, recently held a Christmas party for their mothers in the dining room of Bruce High School.

The room was decorated with a Christmas tree and other appropriate Christmas decorations.

The girls presented a style show, and the program also included "White Christmas," which was sung by a quartet composed of Geraldine Nesmith, Judy Avey, Virginia Warnick and Ellen Paugh. A quartet comprised of Carlene Warnick, Elaine Anta, Bonnie Kooken and Faith Grindle sang, "Winter Wonderland". Patty Kelly also played a piano solo, "Oh Holy Night."

Refreshments were served. Mrs. Dunn is the teacher of the class.

Valley High Boys Study Cooking While Girls Take Shop Course

LONACONING — Something in the way of a "noble experiment" is under way at Valley High School . . . by the request of the students. It seems that boys will be boys but they want to learn to cook, and girls will be girls but they want to learn shop.

There was sufficient interest among the students for Principal J. A. Petry to arrange schedules so that a class of boys could join the Home Economics Department and a class of girls could join the Industrial Department. The boys want to learn cooking, and the girls want to learn to "fix things."

After a week of activity in both departments, instructors are convinced that the experiment is a good one. The girls do not seem to mash their fingers or break hand tools quite as often as might be expected by some skeptics, and none of the boys to date, has burned the muffins, the cookies, or his fingers.

The experiment has not only aroused the interest of the students who are participating, but also that of the entire student body and the faculty. It has also aroused considerable interest and competition between the two participating groups, as they strive to prove they can outdo each other in their "foreign" surroundings.

Ellerslie Stages Operetta Tonight

ELLERSLIE — The students of Ellerslie School will present an operetta "Santa Saves The Day," at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Santa will be played by Howard Wisler with Barbara Bohn as his wife, Mrs. Santa. Sherril Sheavly is the fairy queen.

A committee of fifth and sixth graders are making the scenery and costumes, Harold Harrison, James Lowery, Joe Brewer, John Klare, Darrell Moyer, James DeVore and Glenn Jewell.

Miss Alma G. Logsdon and Miss Roberta Elias are directing the operetta. The children will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Esther Connor.

Parsons Man Made Air Force Captain

PARSONS—Mr. and Mrs. Ellie J. VonHaven of Parsons received word that their son, Ellis J. VonHaven Jr., has been promoted to the rank of Captain as of December 12. VonHaven, a graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., graduated with the highest rate of his class and then attended Davis and Elkins College, Elkins for two and one half years after which he entered the U. S. Air Force.

Captain VonHaven, a member of the Regular U. S. Air Force, is now stationed in Japan. He has been in the service for the past six years.

Baby Clinic

LONACONING — Baby Clinic will be Friday, December 16, beginning at 9:30 a. m. at the Lonaconing Health Center.

BOYS BAKE MUFFINS — "Muffins baked to perfection" was the result of the first baking undertaken by the boys in their Home Economics class instructed by Mrs. Florence M. Hohing at Valley High School. Principal J. A. Petry; Miss Marie Merrbach, secretary; and a host of teachers attest to the delicious results of the boys' first muffins sampled soon after they came out of the ovens. Pictured in the process of mixing the muffins are left to right, Bob Bosley, Michael Winner, Mrs. Florence Hohing, Richard Dick, Kenneth Kiddy, Jack Mongold, Ronald Shaw and Jake Smith, with their cooking aprons on and showing the utmost interest in their classwork. They are very proud of their culinary achievements.

GIRLS STUDY SHOP — Joseph K. Haugen is instructing the first girls class in Industrial Arts at Valley High School, underway for the ensuing six weeks. A study of electrical appliances used in the home, with dangers encountered using the appliances, safety rules, the purpose and proper use of fuses as well as the care, repair and refinishing of home furniture and elementary plastics, will be included. Pictured left to right are Jean Warnick, Clara Shockey, Patsy Kelly, Carlene Boettcher, Eloise Duckworth, Glenna Foote, Norma Spiker, Pearl Wiland, Doris O'Haver, Maxine Armstrong, Joseph K. Home Ec. Class Holds Yule Party

The room was decorated with a Christmas tree and other appropriate Christmas decorations.

The girls presented a style show, and the program also included "White Christmas," which was sung by a quartet composed of Geraldine Nesmith, Judy Avey, Virginia Warnick and Ellen Paugh. A quartet comprised of Carlene Warnick, Elaine Anta, Bonnie Kooken and Faith Grindle sang "Winter Wonderland". Patty Kelly also played a piano solo, "Oh Holy Night."

Refreshments were served. Mrs. Dunn is the teacher of the class.

Valley High Boys Study Cooking While Girls Take Shop Course

LONACONING — Something in the way of a "noble experiment" is under way at Valley High School . . . by the request of the students. It seems that boys will be boys but they want to learn to cook, and girls will be girls but they want to learn shop.

There was sufficient interest among the students for Principal J. A. Petry to arrange schedules so that a class of boys could join the Home Economics Department and a class of girls could join the Industrial Department. The boys want to learn cooking, and the girls want to learn to "fix things."

After a week of activity in both departments, instructors are convinced that the experiment is a good one. The girls do not seem to mash their fingers or break hand tools quite as often as might be expected by some skeptics, and none of the boys to date, has burned the muffins, the cookies, or his fingers.

The experiment has not only aroused the interest of the students who are participating, but also that of the entire student body and the faculty. It has also aroused considerable interest and competition between the two participating groups, as they strive to prove they can outdo each other in their "foreign" surroundings.

Ellerslie Stages Operetta Tonight

Garrett Couple Wins Farm Contest

MORGANTOWN — A Garrett county, Md., couple was honored Saturday as the regional Farming for Better Living Program's outstanding farm family in the five-county area of Monongalia, Preston, Marion, Taylor, and Garrett counties.

Ross and Opal Crowe, who operate a 25-cow commercial dairy herd near Oakland were named at the annual regional banquet in the Hotel Morgan.

L. Bush Swisher, director of the program, sponsored by the Upper Monongahela Valley Association and the Monongahela Power Company, said "hard work, good management and the wise use of labor saving machinery have really paid off for the Crowes."

Mr. and Mrs. Crowe have two children, Connie Lee, 8, and John Robert, 6. Crowe bought his farm while serving in the armed forces in India during World War II.

He started from scratch and now has 25 top-rated dairy cows and 12 heifer replacements sired by artificial breeding.

The Crowes also own a forage harvester, two tractors, hay drier, hay and grain elevator, barn ventilating fans, a combine and many other pieces of labor saving machinery. He does some custom farming for neighbors and also rents a 134-acre farm.

Their Dairy Herd Improvement Association record book shows that last year's herd average was 10,040 pounds of milk and 465 pounds of butter fat.

Crowe points out that this record is quite a difference from the original herd average of 6,000 pounds of milk and 263 pounds of butter fat nine years ago.

He said he soon learned how to cull out the poor producers. His top cow is now producing at the rate of 15,000 pounds of milk annually. He credits the use of artificial breeding and Dairy Herd Improvement records for the increase in his herd's production.

Ross Crowe is director of the Garrett County Farm Bureau and the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and his wife is president of the local Homemakers Club and vice president of the Associated Women of the Farm Bureau.

The Crowe family was Garrett county's champion FFBL family in 1952.

E. C. Arkwright, president of the Morgantown Community Association, presided over the program.

Score Is Named American Loop Rookie Of Year

Tebbetts Recalls When Hurler Signed

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts is a National Leaguer now but in 1952 he was a member of the Cleveland Indians, serving out a 16-year career as a big league catcher. That's when he first met Herb Score, the young fireballer named today as the American League rookie of the year for 1955.

"I'll never forget that day either," the present manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs recalled recently. "It was during batting practice before a night game in June and Al Lopez, the manager, brought this skinny, long-legged kid over and said to me: "Grab a mitt, Birdie, and catch this kid for a while, will you?"

"So I guided this boy over to the sidelines near the Indians' dugout, took my position in back of a makeshift home plate, and casually held out the mitt. The kid wound up and —zooom! I never even saw that first pitch. Lucky for me it was two feet over my head or I wouldn't be here to tell you about it.

"Now I was prepared but it didn't do me much good. It was purely instinct that kept me from being maimed. The balls bounced in front of me, behind me, shot over my head, to the left and to the right of me. But ever one was a bullet. The few he did get over almost tore the glove right off my hand. I was 41 years old then, and I said to myself, 'Birdie, if you value your life, you'd better get out of here.'"

The Indians signed the 19-year-old Score the next day and gave him a bonus of $60,000. The young southpaw was sent to Indianapolis where he got into a dozen games. He fanned 61 batters in 62 innings. He issued 62 passes and wound up the season with a 2-5 won-lost record.

Score was dropped a couple of notches to Reading, Pa., of the Eastern League in 1953 and earned a return to Indianapolis by winning seven of 10 decisions. He was a sensation in 1954, winning 22 while losing five and striking out 330 batters to set an American Association mark. His exploits earned him the most valuable player award.

Score continued his spectacular strikeout success last season with Cleveland, fanning 245 to set a record for first year pitchers. The 6-2, 185-pound fastballer, who also owns one of the best curve balls in the business, won 16 games while losing 10 and ranked fourth in earned run percentage with 2.85.

The 24-man committee of baseball writers who participated in the voting named him the top freshman on 18 ballots. Billy Klaus, the peppery shortstop, who played a vital role in the Boston Red Sox' rise from seventh in May to a final fourth place finish, got five nominations. Klaus batted .283, proved a valuable man in the clutch and played a steady game afield. The other vote went to Norm Zauchin, a teammate of Klaus'. The big first baseman hit only .239, but slammed 27 home runs, including three in one game on May 27, to account for 10 runs batted in.

Ted Kluszewski Grabs Fielding Title 5th Time

Schoendienst, Jones And Banks Are Tops

By TONY GALLI

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (INS) — Ted Kluszewski, a veritable pillar of strength for the Cincinnati Redlegs, held the club's defenses together in 1955 with the best fielding percentage in the National League.

Official statistics released today showed that the ex-Indiana football player led first basemen for the fifth straight year with a .995 fielding average.

The 31-year-old native of Argo, Ill., who finished fifth in the batting derby with .314 average, broke Charley Grimm's major league record for consecutive years leading the league's first basemen defensively.

Ted Kluszewski

Actually four others held the mark too but Grimm was the last and Kluszewski now is within hailing distance of his record of most years leading the league — nine.

Klu, a muscular 6-foot-2, 236-pounder, committed only eight errors in 1,482 total chances to nose out St. Louis' great Stan Musial by three percentage points.

Ted's Redlegs were the third best defensive club, with a third percentage of .977 behind Philadelphia (.981) and Brooklyn (.978). The Phillies also committed the fewest errors, 110.

Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals copped the second base fielding crown with a .985 average, the fourth such championship for him. He was guilty of ten miscues in 687 chances. Milwaukee's Dan O'Connell was second with .981.

Jones Best At Third

Willie Jones of Philadelphia led the third sackers for the third straight year, with a .960 percentage for 18 errors in 455 chances. Ed Mathews of the Braves was next with .952.

Ernie Banks, all-star shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, led his department with a .972 percentage. Roy McMillan of Cincinnati was next with a .969.

Eddie Miksi of Chicago, veteran an infielder who joined the outfield ranks in 1955, nailed down the defensive championship in his newly chosen profession. He nosed out Duke Snider with a .9891 percentage to .9889 for Brooklyn's runs-batted-in kind and "most valuable" runnerup.

Philadelphia catcher Andy Seminick led the receivers with a .994 percentage. Roy Campanella, the MVP from Brooklyn, was second with .992.

Art Fowler of Cincinnati led the qualifying pitchers by handling 42 chances without error for a 1.000 percentage.

New York made the most putouts (4-601) Milwaukee had the most assists (1780) and the most total chances (6081) and Pittsburgh made the most double plays (165). There were five triple plays (one each by the Phils, Giants, Cubs, Braves and Pirates), two short of the record set in 1910 and equalled in '29.

Players Refuse To Accept Owners' Rejection Of Plans

Want Major Leagues To Reconsider TV, Salary Proposals

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The major league player representatives, in an unprecedented action, refused point blank today to accept the club owners' rejection of certain proposals submitted to the magnates at their annual winter meeting in Chicago last week.

At a meeting of the representatives of the 16 big league clubs with their attorney, J. Norman Lewis, the players decided to re-submit two specific proposals for consideration by the owners at their scheduled meeting next Feb. 4. They appointed Robin Roberts and Bob Feller, the two league representatives, together with Lewis, to meet with Commissioner Ford Frick at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow to further discuss their grievances.

Cannot Go Along

"The player representatives feel they cannot go along with the rejection of the owners of certain proposals," explained Feller of the Cleveland Indians, the American League's player representative and spokesman for the group. "They are quite disturbed about it.

"The fellows are particularly incensed over the turndown of the proposals to have representation on the committee which will negotiate for a new contract affecting television of the World Series and All-Star game, and raising of minimum salaries."

Feller made no effort to conceal his indignation as he discussed the players' grievances with reporters, and at times had to be cautioned by Lewis not to say too much. Roberts, of the Philadelphia Phils, as National League player representative, also sat in on the news conferences, but appeared mild and undisturbed.

The meeting, probably the most important ever held by the players, was recessed after two hours in order to prepare a printed statement to the press.

The statement read in part:

"Specifically, the player representatives are not satisfied with the summary rejection of their requests that:

"1. They be consulted and kept informed regarding any new contract affecting television of the World Series and All-Star game, 60 per cent of the proceeds of which belongs to the players' pension fund.

"2. The minimum salary for a major league player on the roster of a major league club after the cut-down date, May 15, be $7,200 per annum. Since the previous $5,000 minimum (increased to $6,000) was established in 1947, the cost of living according to U. S. government figures has increased 44 per cent. The owners have claimed that there is a small percentage of ball players which receives less than $7,200. If this is so, then the cost of this increase to the owners would be negligible.

"The player representatives are communicating to the owners their suggestions that some action be taken by the owners at their Feb. 4, 1956 meeting."

Owners Rejected Requests

At their Chicago meeting, the owners flatly rejected five of the players' requests. In addition to the television contract and salary proposals, the players had suggested that bonus boys be taken off the player limit of 25 in order to make room for veteran players, had asked for permission to make their own deals for winter competition in the Caribbean federation, and requested that years spent in the military service be to count towards pension eligibility.

In addition to Roberts and Feller, player representatives attending the meeting included:

Fixed Dates For West Va. Hunters Seen

All Game Except Deer Considered

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Fixed opening dates for hunting seasons which would not change from year to year are being recommended by the West Virginia Conservation Department with respect to all game except deer.

"Constant changes in the opening dates result in unnecessary confusion and more game law violations," the department said. "Were the opening dates for the hunting seasons established permanently, vacations could be arranged well in advance."

The department's recommendations were made known today in separate open letters covering hunting and fishing. They are being mailed out to sportsmen's and conservation groups in advance of the annual sectional meetings at which game and fish recommendations are discussed.

The letter from the fish management division said "we do not anticipate any appreciable changes from the 1955 regulations." One change proposed, however, is that gigging and snaring be permitted only during early spring, late fall and winter.

Gigging of non-game fish was legalized during the past year after having been banned for many years. The division said that while gigging during the summer was not too extensive, "there were complaints of violations in drought-ridden areas."

An increase from four to six in the daily bag limit on squirrels was recommended.

"Under the present daily bag limit of four, only about 15 per cent of the squirrel population is taken. The increased bag limit will not endanger the breeding population," the department said.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts is a National Leaguer now but in 1952 he was a member of the Cleveland Indians, serving out a 16-year career as a big league catcher. That's when he first met Herb Score, the young fireballer named today as the American League rookie of the year for 1955.

"I'll never forget that day either," the present manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs recalled recently. "It was during batting practice before a night game in June and Al Lopez, the manager, brought this skinny, long-legged kid over and said to me: 'Grab a mitt, Birdie, and catch this kid for a while, will you?'

"So I guided this boy over to the sidelines near the Indians' dugout, took my position in back of a makeshift home plate, and casually held out the mitt. The kid wound up and—zooom! I never even saw that first pitch. Lucky for me it was two feet over my head or I wouldn't be here to tell you about it.

"Now I was prepared but it didn't do me much good. It was purely instinct that kept me from being maimed. The balls bounced in front of me, behind me, shot over my head, to the left and to the right of me. But ever one was a bullet. The few he did get over almost tore the glove right off my hand. I was 41 years old then, and I said to myself, 'Birdie, if you value your life, you'd better get out of here.'"

The Indians signed the 19-year-old Score the next day and gave him a bonus of $60,000. The young southpaw was sent to Indianapolis where he got into a dozen games. He fanned 61 batters in 62 innings but he was wild as a young steer. He issued 62 passes and wound up the season with a 2-5 won-lost record.

Score was dropped a couple of notches to Reading, Pa., of the Eastern League in 1953 and earned a return to Indianapolis by winning seven of 10 decisions. He was a sensation in 1954, winning 22 while losing five and striking out 330 batters to set an American Association mark. His exploits earned him the most valuable player award.

Score continued his spectacular strikeout success last season with Cleveland, fanning 245 to set a record for first year pitchers. The 6-2, 185-pound fastballer, who also owns one of the best curve balls in the business, won 16 games while losing 10 and ranked fourth in earned run percentage with 2.85.

The 24-man committee of baseball writers who participated in the voting named him the top freshman on 18 ballots. Billy Klaus, the peppery shortstop, who played a vital role in the Boston Red Sox' rise from seventh in May to a final fourth place finish, got five nominations. Klaus batted .283, proved a valuable man in the clutch and played a steady game afield. The other vote went to Norm Zauchin, a teammate of Klaus'. The big first baseman hit only .239, but slammed 27 home runs, including three in one game on May 27, to account for 10 runs batted in.

Helen Spiker And Enos Slaughter To Arrive Sunday

A reception will be given at the home of the bride-elect, following the ceremony.

Bruce To Play Southern High

Bruce High School's floormen, fresh from a 71-67 victory over LaSalle's Explorers, will be shooting for their third triumph of the season tonight when they play Southern High School of Oakland in Westernport.

Bruce lost the opener to Elk Garden, 46-41, and scored wins over Fort Ashby, 82-52, and LaSalle.

Shepherd College's Rams are scheduled to play Dick DeHart's Davis and Elkins College cagers tonight in a West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference game at Shepherdstown.

Ted Kluszewski Grabs Fielding Title 5th Time

Schoendienst, Jones And Banks Are Tops

By TONY GALLI

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (INS)—Ted Kluszewski, a veritable pillar of strength for the Cincinnati Redlegs, held the club's defenses together in 1955 with the best fielding percentage in the National League.

Official statistics released today showed that the ex-Indiana football player led first basemen for the fifth straight year with a .995 fielding average.

Ted Kluszewski

The 31-year-old native of Argo, Ill., who finished fifth in the batting derby with a .314 average, broke Charley Grimm's major league record for consecutive years leading the league's first basemen defensively.

Actually four others held the mark too but Grimm was the last and Kluszewski now is within hailing distance of his record of most years leading the league — nine.

Klu, a muscular 6-foot-2, 236-pounder, committed only eight errors in 1,482 total chances to nose out St. Louis' great Stan Musial by three percentage points.

Ted's Redlegs were the third best defensive club, with a third percentage of .977 behind Philadelphia (.981) and Brooklyn (.978). The Phillies also committed the fewest errors, 110.

Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals copped the second base fielding crown with a .985 average, the fourth such championship for him. He was guilty of ten miscues in 687 chances. Milwaukee's Dan O'Connell was runnerup with .981.

Jones Best At Third

Willie Jones of Philadelphia led the third sackers for the third straight year, with a .960 percentage for 18 errors in 455 chances. Ed Mathews of the Braves was next with .952.

Ernie Banks, all-star shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, led his department with a .972 percentage. Roy McMillan of Cincinnati was next with a .969.

Eddie Miksi sof Chicago, veteran infielder who joined the outfield ranks in 1955, nailed down the defensive championship in his newly chosen profession. He nosed out Duke Snider with a .9891 percentage to .9889 for Brooklyn's runs-batted-in kind and "most valuable" runnerup.

Philadelphia catcher Andy Seminick led the receivers with a .994 percentage. Roy Campanella, the MVP from Brooklyn, was second with .992.

Art Fowler of Cincinnati led the qualifying pitchers by handling 42 chances without error for a 1.000 percentage.

New York made the most putouts (4-60) Milwaukee had the most assists (1780) and the most total chances (6081) and Pittsburgh made the most double plays (165). There were five triple plays (one each by the Phils, Giants, Cubs, Braves and Pirates), two short of the record set in 1910 and equalled in '29.

Players Refuse To Accept Owners' Rejection Of Plans

Want Major Leagues To Reconsider TV, Salary Proposals

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The major league player representatives, in an unprecedented action, refused point blank today to accept the club owners' rejection of certain proposals submitted to the magnates at their annual winter meeting in Chicago last week.

At a meeting of the representatives of the 16 big league clubs with their attorney, J. Norman Lewis, the players decided to re-submit two specific proposals for consideration by the owners at their scheduled meeting next Feb. 4. They appointed Robin Roberts and Bob Feller, the two league representatives, together with Lewis, to meet with Commissioner Ford Frick at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow to further discuss their grievances.

Cannot Go Along

"The player representatives feel they cannot go along with the rejection of the owners of certain proposals," explained Feller of the Cleveland Indians, the American League's player representative and spokesman for the group. "They are quite disturbed about it.

"The fellows are particularly incensed over the turndown of the proposals to have representation on the committee which will negotiate for a new contract affecting television of the World Series and All-Star game, and raising of minimum salaries."

Feller made no effort to conceal his indignation as he discussed the players' grievances with reporters, and at times had to be cautioned by Lewis not to say too much. Roberts, of the Philadelphia Phils, as National League player representative, also sat in on the news conferences, but appeared mild and undisturbed.

The meeting, probably the most important ever held by the players, was recessed after two hours in order to prepare a printed statement to the press.

The statement read in part:

"Specifically, the player representatives are not satisfied with the summary rejection of their requests that:

"1. They be consulted and kept informed regarding any new contract affecting television of the World Series and All-Star game, 60 per cent of the proceeds of which belongs to the players' pension fund.

"2. The minimum salary for a major league player on the roster of a major league club after the cut-down date, May 15, be $7,200 per annum. Since the previous $5,000 minimum (increased to $6,000) was established in 1947, the cost of living according to U. S. government figures has increased 44 per cent. The owners have claimed that there is a small percentage of ball players which receives less than $7,200. If this is so, then the cost of this increase to the owners would be negligible.

"The player representatives are communicating to the owners their suggestions that some action be taken by the owners at their Feb. 4, 1956 meeting."

Owners Rejected Requests

At their Chicago meeting, the owners flatly rejected five of the players' requests. In addition to the television contract and salary proposals, the players had suggested that bonus boys be taken off the player limit of 25 in order to make room for veteran players, had asked for permission to make their own deals for winter competition in the Caribbean federation, and requested that years spent in the military service be to count towards pension eligibility.

In addition to Roberts and Feller, player representatives attending the meeting included:

Fixed Dates For West Va. Hunters Seen

All Game Except Deer Considered

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Fixed opening dates for hunting seasons which would not change from year to year are being recommended by the West Virginia Conservation Department with respect to all game except deer.

"Constant changes in the opening dates result in unneccessary confusion and more game law violations," the department said. "Were the opening dates for the hunting seasons established permanently, vacations could be arranged well in advance."

The department's recommendations were made known today in separate open letters covering hunting and fishing. They are being mailed out to sportsmen's and conservation groups in advance of the annual sectional meetings at which game and fish recommendations are discussed.

The letter from the fish management division said, "We do not anticipate any appreciable changes from the 1955 regulations." One change proposed, however, is that gigging and snaring be permitted only during early spring, late fall and winter.

Gigging of non-game fish was legalized during the past year after having been banned for many years. The division said that while gigging during the summer was not too extensive, "there were complaints of violations in drought-ridden areas."

An increase from four to six in the daily bag limit on squirrels was recommended.

"Under the present daily bag limit of four, only about 15 per cent of the squirrel population is taken. The increased bag limit will not endanger the breeding population," the department said.

Famous Belair Racing Stables Will Be Dissolved Today

Sealed Bids On Stock To Be Opened

Future For Nashua May Be Determined By Woodward Estate

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The fate of Nashua and whether the big 3-year-old champion and 1955 American No. 1 horse will ever race again is expected to be cleared up tomorrow when the famous Belair stud racing stable is dissolved.

Sealed bids for Nashua and 61 other horses from the late William Woodward Jr.'s Belair stud are to be opened here.

It is all up to the Hanover Bank and John W. Ludewig, executors of the estate, whether to accept bids for Nashua and the rest of the racing and breeding stable. Ludewig served for many years as secretary to William Woodward Sr., founder of the stable 45 years ago, and then for the younger Woodward upon the death of his father in 1953. Young Woodward, 35, died of accidental gunshot wounds inflected by his wife Oct. 30.

Estimates have placed the value of Nashua at anywhere from $500,000 to $1,000,000. The son of Nasrullah is insured for $750,000.

Executors announced that they would accept sealed bids for Nashua and the other horses until 11 a.m. tomorrow. It is expected that several syndicates will be in the market for the thoroughbreds.

Under terms announced 10 days ago, the horses will be lumped into four categories: (1) Nashua; (2) nine other race horses and 12 yearlings; (3) 24 broodmares and 16 weanlings; (4) Nashua, and the entire racing stable and breeding stock in one overall package deal.

"This could be a very complicated matter to thresh out, and there is no indication how soon there can be any announcement after the bids are opened," one advisor to the executors said.

The Hon Scores At Tropical In Upset Triumph

Irish-Bred Colt Pays $206.50 In Sloppy Go

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—The Hon, an Irish-bred colt, furnished the greatest surprise of the current season when he outran seven other sprinters in the sixth race at Tropical Park today. He paid $206.50, $32.40 and $7.50, biggest priced winner here to date.

Fond of the sloppy footing, the despised outsider withstood a hard drive gamely to prevail by a half-length from Hasty House Farms' Alspal. Another half-length away was S. Rich's Helianthus, the odds-on choice, which was blocked in the stretch while trying to get through on the inside. Fourth was Black Record, another length away.

The Hon, owned by John S. Kroese, of Teaneck, N. J. had been unplaced in his first seven starts in this country. Here in his previous outing, the 4-year-old son of Honeyway had finished eight, beaten 24 lengths by Dark Ruler. Evidently, the slop moved him up glaringly.

The Hon was always in a contending position, never worse than fourth, as Black Record and Alspal cut out the pace. He moved to the leaders on the turn, and then challenged Alspal through the stretch, as Black Record tied badly. Helianthus, however, was going full steam when "shut out" near the eighth pole, forcing him to swing to the outside. His bid came too late. The Hon covered the 6 furlongs in 1:12 4/5.

There were more showers today, cutting the attendance down to 6,775, as against 8,011 a year ago.

The Hon was ridden by Karl Korte, completing a double for the boy.

Dania, under a perfect ride by Ken Church, annexed the featured seventh race, rewarding the talent at $7.90, $5.90 and $4.20. Elkchester, a 50 to 1 hazard, was second, returning $43 and $15.70. Flying Chief, at $8.00, took third from seven others in the three-quarter event. It was timed in 1:13 2/5. A claim of foul lodged against the winner was disallowed by the stewards. It was made by Charlie O'Brien, rider of the fourth horse, White Knight.

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Roy Petsch, who quarterbacked Nebraska's Rose Bowl football team in 1941, was refereeing the Laramie-Cheyenne high school game for the Wyoming Class AA football championship when a gangfight broke out between the two teams.

In the melee, Petsch was bowled over by a Cheyenne player.

Petsch grabbed the Cheyenne boy by the seat of the pants and remarked:

"That was a good block, son. If you'd been blocking like that all day your team wouldn't be behind."

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The New York Yankees today announced the signing of a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher, Jim Pignatello of Montclair, N. J., to a major league contract for an estimated $4,000.

LeBaron Named Most Valuable

Presented Trophy By Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Eddie LeBaron, the smallest quarterback in the National Football League, today was honored as the most valuable player on the Washington Redskins' 1955 team.

LeBaron, the No. 5 passer and No. 4 punter in the league this season, rejoined the Redskins after one year in Canadian football. Known throughout the league for his expert ballhandling, LeBaron was rewarded by being chosen to quarterback the Eastern Division team in the annual pro bowl game in Los Angeles next month.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — West Virginia University was one of the first Eastern schools to adopt a football numbering system now popular with most colleges. In 1946 equipment custodian Carl Roberts suggested that it would be easier to identify the players if all quarterbacks were numbered in the 10s, left halfbacks 20s, fullbacks 30s, right halfbacks 40s, ends 80s, tackles 70s, guards 60s and centers 50s.

Famous Belair Racing Stables Will Be Dissolved Today

Sealed Bids On Stock To Be Opened

Future For Nashua May Be Determined By Woodward Estate

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The fate of Nashua and whether the big 3-year-old champion and 1955 American No. 1 horse will ever race again is expected to be cleared up tomorrow when the famous Belair stud racing stable is dissolved.

Sealed bids for Nashua and 61 other horses from the late William Woodward Jr.'s Belair stud are to be opened here.

It is all up to the Hanover Bank and John W. Ludewig, executors of the estate, whether to accept bids for Nashua and the rest of the racing and breeding stable. Ludewig served for many years as secretary to William Woodward Sr., founder of the stable 45 years ago, and then for the younger Woodward upon the death of his father in 1953. Young Woodward, 35, died of accidental gunshot wounds inflected by his wife Oct. 30.

Estimates have placed the value of Nashua at anywhere from $500,000 to $1,000,000. The son of Nasrullah is insured for $750,000.

Executors announced that they would accept sealed bids for Nashua and the other horses until 11 a.m. tomorrow. It is expected that several syndicates will be in the market for the thoroughbreds.

Under terms announced 10 days ago, the horses will be lumped into four categories: (1) Nashua; (2) nine other race horses and 12 yearlings; (3) 24 broodmares and 16 weanlings; (4) Nashua, and the entire racing stable and breeding stock in one overall package deal.

"This could be a very complicated matter to thresh out, and there is no indication how soon there can be any announcement after the bids are opened," one advisor to the executors said.

The Hon Scores At Tropical In Upset Triumph

Irish-Bred Colt Pays $206.50 In Sloppy Go

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—The Hon, an Irish-bred colt, furnished the greatest surprise of the current season when he outran seven other sprinters in the sixth race at Tropical Park today. He paid $206.50, $32.40 and $7.50, biggest priced winner here to date.

Fond of the sloppy footing, the despised outsider withstood a hard drive gamely to prevail by a half-length from Hasty House Farms' Alspal. Another half-length away was S. Rich's Helianthus, the odds-on choice, which was blocked in the stretch while trying to get through on the inside. Fourth was Black Record, another length away.

The Hon, owned by John S. Kroese, of Teaneck, N. J. had been unplaced in his first seven starts in this country. Here in his previous outing, the 4-year-old son of Honeyway had finished eight, beaten 24 lengths by Dark Ruler. Evidently, the slop moved him up glaringly.

The Hon was always in a contending position, never worse than fourth, as Black Record and Alspal cut out the pace. He moved to the leaders on the turn, and then challenged Alspal through the stretch, as Black Record tied badly. Helianthus, however, was going full steam when "shut out" near the eighth pole, forcing him to swing to the outside. His bid came too late. The Hon covered the 6 furlongs in 1:12 4/5.

There were more showers today, cutting the attendance down to 6,775, as against 8,011 a year ago.

The Hon was ridden by Karl Korte, completing a double for the boy.

Dania, under a perfect ride by Ken Church, annexed the featured seventh race, rewarding the talent at $7.90, $5.90 and $4.20. Elkchester, a 50 to 1 hazard, was second, returning $43 and $15.70. Flying Chief, at $8.00, took third from seven others in the three-quarter event. It was timed in 1:13 2/5. A claim of foul lodged against the winner was disallowed by the stewards. It was made by Charlie O'Brien, rider of the fourth horse, White Knight.

Ref Knows Good Block

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Roy Petsch, who quarterbacked Nebraska's Rose Bowl football team in 1941, was refereeing the Laramie-Cheyenne high school game for the Wyoming Class AA football championship when a gangfight broke out between the two teams.

In the melee, Petsch was bowled over by a Cheyenne player.

Petsch grabbed the Cheyenne boy by the seat of the pants and remarked:

"That was a good block, son. If you'd been blocking like that all day your team wouldn't be behind."

Yanks Sign Young Right Hand Hurler

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — The New York Yankees today announced the signing of a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher, Jim Pignatello of Montclair, N. J., to a major league contract for an estimated $4,000.

Pignatello originally was signed by the Baltimore Orioles last summer, but his contract was nullified by baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and he was declared a free agent.

Pignatello, who stands 6-1 and weighs 185 pounds, starred for Montclair High School for three years and was signed by Yankee scout Frank O'Rourke. The youngster pitched four no-hitters in three seasons and struck out 204 batters in 100 innings in his senior year. He also played shortstop, first base and the outfield, while leading his team in home runs.

LeBaron Named Most Valuable

Presented Trophy By Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Eddie LeBaron, the smallest quarterback in the National Football League, today was honored as the most valuable player on the Washington Redskins' 1955 team.

The little professor from Lodi, Calif., was chosen the club's top performer by sportswriters covering the Redskins. A trophy was presented LeBaron by Lt. Billy Wells, winner of the award last year and now stationed at Ft. Belvoir, in nearby Virginia.

It was one of the rare occasions in football when a halfback handed off to a quarterback. Wells, formerly of Michigan State, told reporters he expects to be released from the Army by next October which would give him at least half a season in the NFL.

LeBaron, the No. 5 passer and No. 4 punter in the league this season, rejoined the Redskins after one year in Canadian football. Known throughout the league for his expert ballhandling, LeBaron was rewarded by being chosen to quarterback the Eastern Division team in the annual pro bowl game in Los Angeles next month.

Clever Custodian

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — West Virginia University was one of the first Eastern schools to adopt a football numbering system now popular with most colleges. In 1946 equipment custodian Carl Roberts suggested that it would be easier to identify the players if all quarterbacks were numbered in the 10s, left halfbacks 20s, fullbacks 30s, right halfbacks 40s, ends 80s, tackles 70s, guards 60s and centers 50s.

Today Irving Rudd, Jersey City business manager for the Brooklyn club, said that nearly $20,000 in orders had been received—including a single order for $2,000—and that at least 100 persons had visited his office trying to buy the unavailable pasteboards.

Friendly Rivals Still

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Jim Pace, flashy University of Michigan sophomore halfback played only briefly when Michigan met Illinois. But after the game, he had a few words to say about Bob Mitchell, who led Illinois to an upset victory over the Wolverines:

"He's one of the most terrific backs that I ever played against," said Pace. "I'm not saying this because he's my friend. Actually we used to duel for the championship in the 100-yard dash in Arkansas state high school competition. I set the all-state record with 9.6, but Mitch was just a shade behind."

Both Pace and Mitchell went to Dunbar High School in Little Rock. Both are Negroes.

Rich Boat Race

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese bettor collected $294 on a 25-cent ticket at the motorboat races—a 1,176 to 1 shot, highest in the records of the sport. He wouldn't give his name. Just collected and walked.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (INS)—With every studio in town putting in a bid for Eva Marie Saint, I can tell you she's about to sign with 20th Century-Fox for the role of "Jane Eyre." She wants to do it, and the only thing that stands between her and the studio is the little matter of money, and you can take it from me that will be ironed out.

Won't Eva Marie be wonderful as Jane? She will have James Mason, not only as her co-star but her producer. I told you some months ago that James had signed with Darryl Zanuck to both act in and produce the famous Charlotte Bronte novel.

It's a merry Christmas at the John Farrow's this year. John has just signed a contract with RKO on a three picture deal to direct and produce.

So great is RKO's hurry to establish itself as a working studio that John will start "Back From Eternity" in February. William Dozier, who made the deal with John, has engaged the author of "Back From Eternity," Jonathan Latimer, to write the script.

In describing the story, John says it has a spiritual, a melodramatic and a romantic angle. He has been very busy this past year with his book, "Thomas More" published, and a volume of verse soon to come out.

Chit-chat: If Gloria Vanderbilt was in love and piqued with Frank Sinatra when she left Hollywood and walked out on "Johnny Concho" she's all over her emotions in that direction. She is being seen everywhere with Sidney Lumet, TV executive.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Such good news. If Buster Keaton continues to improve he'll be able to go home for Christmas.

Diana Lynn is again seeing Henry Willson to whom she was once engaged. They were together at the Rock Hudson party Saturday night.

The life story of the late Hal Kemp is being discussed for movies with his widow, the present Mrs. Hayes Goetz.

Danny Thomas, my neighbor, again plays the anniversary show at the Las Vegas Sands starting Dec. 18.

Serious talk about converting the Huntington Hartford Theatre into a movie house. Too bad that Hollywood won't support a legitimate theatre.

Yvonne De Carlo's bridegroom has had to lug firewood for their fireplaces — their furnace is on strike so they're getting a new one.

A flash from Acapulco says that Katy Jurado has a mad crush on Henry Brandon, who is there on location for "Bandido."

Charlie Ruggles takes his typewriter in hand to tell me he's back in California after two years in New York with his TV show "The World and Mr. Sweeney." He's still doing five "Sweeneys" a week here.

Cheerful news that Milton Berle is well enough to buy his Ruth a full length silver (bleu) mink and give her a dinner at the Mocambo for their second wedding anniversary.

Just after I printed that John Huston was proud of his Rica for her prowess on horseback, she fell off her horse and broke her arm.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Rugged Game Prof

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Principal Elbert Brooks of Pueblo High School is going to stick to his duties in the office from now on.

Brooks waded into the middle of a football game between two nearby high schools and a player slammed into him. He was serving as an official.

Brooks was in the hospital for a week with a fracture of the forehead and contusions of the nose and teeth.

Fishing Gets One

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Willie Hartack, the nation's leading jockey, tried his hand at deep sea fishing and brought in a sailfish. Despite his good luck, the slender Charles Town, W. Va., rider said he'd had enough fishing for a long time. Willie got seasick.

Friendly Rivals Still

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Jim Pace, flashy University of Michigan sophomore halfback played only briefly when Michigan met Illinois. But after the game, he had a few words to say about Bob Mitchell, who led Illinois to an upset victory over the Wolverines:

"He's one of the most terrific backs that I ever played against," said Pace. "I'm not saying this because he's my friend. Actually we used to duel for the championship in the 100-yard dash in Arkansas state high school competition. I set the all-state record with 9.6, but Mitch was just a shade behind."

Both Pace and Mitchell went to Dunbar High School in Little Rock. Both are Negroes.

Rich Boat Race

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese bettor collected $294 on a 25-cent ticket at the motorboat races—a 1,176 to 1 shot, highest in the records of the sport. He wouldn't give his name. Just collected and walked.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (INS)—With every studio in town putting in a bid for Eva Marie Saint, I can tell you she's about to sign with 20th Century-Fox for the role of "Jane Eyre." She wants to do it, and the only thing that stands between her and the studio is the little matter of money, and you can take it from me that will be ironed out.

Won't Eva Marie be wonderful as Jane? She will have James Mason, not only as her co-star but her producer. I told you some months ago that James had signed with Darryl Zanuck to both act in and produce the famous Charlotte Bronte novel.

It's a merry Christmas at the John Farrow's this year. John has just signed a contract with RKO on a three picture deal to direct and produce.

So great is RKO's hurry to establish itself as a working studio that John will start "Back From Eternity" in February. William Dozier, who made the deal with John, has engaged the author of "Back From Eternity," Jonathan Latimer, to write the script.

In describing the story, John says it has a spiritual, a melodramatic and a romantic angle. He has been very busy this past year with his book, "Thomas More" published, and a volume of verse soon to come out.

Chit-chat: If Gloria Vanderbilt was in love and piqued with Frank Sinatra when she left Hollywood and walked out on "Johnny Concho" she's all over her emotions in that direction. She is being seen everywhere with Sidney Lumet, TV executive.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Such good news. If Buster Keaton continues to improve he'll be able to go home for Christmas.

Diana Lynn is again seeing Henry Willson to whom she was once engaged. They were together at the Rock Hudson party Saturday night.

The life story of the late Hal Kemp is being discussed for movies with his widow, the present Mrs. Hayes Goetz.

Danny Thomas, my neighbor, again plays the anniversary show at the Las Vegas Sands starting Dec. 18.

Serious talk about converting the Huntington Hartford Theatre into a movie house. Too bad that Hollywood won't support a legitimate theatre.

Yvonne De Carlo's bridegroom has had to lug firewood for their fireplaces — their furnace is on strike so they're getting a new one.

A flash from Acapulco says that Katy Jurado has a mad crush on Henry Brandon, who is there on location for "Bandido."

Charlie Ruggles takes his typewriter in hand to tell me he's back in California after two years in New York with his TV show "The World and Mr. Sweeney." He's still doing five "Sweeneys" a week here.

Cheerful news that Milton Berle is well enough to buy his Ruth a full length silver (bleu) mink and give her a dinner at the Mocambo for their second wedding anniversary.

Just after I printed that John Huston was proud of his Rica for her prowess on horseback, she fell off her horse and broke her arm.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Rugged Game Prof

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Principal Elbert Brooks of Pueblo High School is going to stick to his duties in the office from now on.

Brooks waded into the middle of a football game between two nearby high schools and a player slammed into him. He was serving as an official.

Brooks was in the hospital for a week with a fracture of the forehead and contusions of the nose and teeth.

Contract Bridge

HELP FROM THE ENEMY

SOUTH didn't have the ghost of a chance for his game contract in the following deal, but one of the opponents was very friendly.

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ J 10 8 4 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ Q 5 3 ♣ J 4 3
West: ♠ 7 ♥ 10 9 7 ♦ A K J 10 8 4 ♣ K 9 6
East: ♠ 6 3 ♥ K 5 3 2 ♦ 7 6 2 ♣ Q 10 8 5
South: ♠ A K Q 9 5 2 ♥ J 8 4 ♦ 9 ♣ A 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond king, but when the dummy was spread and East properly played his lowest diamond, West shifted to the heart ten. (A club shift would have made the defense unmistakably clear, but West could scarcely know that that shift was safe.)

A low heart was played from dummy on West's lead; East put up the king and returned his top diamond. South promptly discarded a low club and West of course won with the ace. Now, with the diamond queen established in dummy, South had 10 ironclad tricks.

East's diamond return was inexcusable. Even if declarer followed to this trick, the diamond queen would be established, and it was unthinkable (on the bidding) that East had the club ace and would be able to lay down that card for the setting trick. Since the club ace was marked with South, and since successful defense would be virtually out of the question unless West had the club king, East should have returned his fourth-highest club.

It is true that the lead from the Q-10-8-5 of a suit up to dummy's guarded jack is often unwise, but in this case the situation spoke for itself, and East should have seen the need for that lead. As it happened, he also could have returned a heart safely enough—indeed, only the diamond return could have given South his contract.

JOSEPH MILLER

We wish to express our sincere thanks for the many kindnesses shown us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Wade H. Breadwater. We wish especially to thank the choir members of Barton Methodist Church, Rev. H. Eldear Suite and Rev. WIFE, SON and DAUGHTER

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Charles Leo Fleegle, who died in battle, eleven years ago, Dec. 15, 1944.

I cannot say and I will not say,
That he is dead, he is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair,
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you, oh you, who the wildest yearn,
For the old time step and the glad return.
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.
Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead, he is just away.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER and BROTHER.

In memory of Alonzo Hill, who died December 15th, 1953.

Do not ask us if we miss him
There's such a vacant place,
Often we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.
Days of sadness still come over us,
Tears in silence often flow,
Memory keeps him ever near us
Though he left us two years ago.

Sadly missed by his WIFE and FAMILY

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all of those who were so kind to us during the illness and to me following the death of my beloved wife, Lillian Pearl Miller. I especially wish to thank Rev. David Streett, the pallbearers and those who sent floral tributes and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

JOSEPH MILLER

We wish to express our sincere thanks for the many kindnesses shown us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Wade H. Broadwater. We wish especially to thank the choir members of Barton Methodist Church, Rev. H. Edgar Suite and Rev. Bryon Keesecker for their comforting words, and those who sent floral tributes and all who assisted in any way.

WIFE, SON and DAUGHTER

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Charles Lou Fleegle, who died in battle, eleven years ago, Dec. 15, 1944.

I cannot say and I will not say,
That he is dead, he is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown Land,
And left us dreaming how very fair,
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you, oh you, who the wildest yearn,
For the old time step and the glad return,
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.
Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead, he is just away.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER and BROTHER

In memory of Alonzo Hill, who died December 15th, 1953.

Do not ask us if we miss him
There's such a vacant place,
Often we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.
Days of sadness still come over us,
Tears in silence often flow.
Memory keeps him ever near us
Though he left us two years ago.

Sadly missed by his WIFE and FAMILY

Rush For Pennies Keeps Mint Working Overtime

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—The big news at the U.S. Mint today is the nationwide rush for pennies.

During the first 11 months of this year the mint ground out 799 million cents. It now works 11 hours a day, six days a week, making eight million pennies a day.

And still the cry is: more, more!

William H. Brett, director of the mint, thinks Pennsylvania caused part of his penny problems.

"They put in a new cigarette tax up there," Brett said. "It meant that additional pennies had to go into vending machines to make correct change. Last year we put 21 million cents into Philadelphia. This year during the same period we put 64 million cents there. Same situation at Pittsburgh.

"And all this at a time when banks were getting their supply of pennies for their Christmas business."

Brett says no one has a full explanation of the penny problem. Last year, from Jan. 1 to Nov. 30, Federal Reserve banks delivered to private banks 295 million cents. This year, for a similar period, the demand was for 1,094,000,000 pennies.

In spite of the demand, Brett insists there's no real penny shortage. He cites the case of the New England bank that offered to pay $1.05 for each $1 in pennies brought in counted and wrapped.

"In no time," Brett said, "they had so many pennies they had to call the whole thing off."

Most of the year, Brett said, the mint worried because it had too much coin on hand.

"One person high up in government—I wish I could give you this name—wrote me and said that since the penny no longer will buy anything we might as well quit making them. And look how things are now."

Since the cent appears to be here to stay, let's look at a few facts, pennywise:

Since the first one was made, in 1792, 23 billion have been minted. Nobody knows, though, how many still are in circulation.

Sixty-five per cent of all coin is in pennies.

A sketch by Sara Carter, Hazel Swauger and Santa Claus. Carols by the entire group. Closing Trio-Hazel Swauger, Evelyn Blank and Gertrude Reagan, "G. What a Pal is Sara."

Four Injured In Area Auto Accidents

Two Cars Collide On Valley Road

Four area residents were injured, one being admitted to a local hospital, as a result of two separate highway accidents which occurred yesterday.

Two Valley Road residents, Miss Shirley Lee Westfall, 17, and Allene Jones, 28, were taken to Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision on Valley Road about 4½ miles north of Cumberland.

Miss Westfall, attaches said, was examined and apparently was uninjured, while Allene Jones sustained a laceration of her face and abrasions of her leg.

Headon Collision

The accident occurred about 5:30 p. m. as Miss Westfall, driving south, collided headon with a car operated by Omer Nazelrod, 27, also of Valley Road. Nazelrod apparently was uninjured.

Tfc Lynwood Clark, who investigated, said Miss Westfall is being charged with operating an auto without a license and failing to keep to the right of the center of the highway.

In the other accident, a 16-month-old girl, Frances Ann Lippold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lippold, Christie Road, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a fractured shoulder sustained in a mishap which occurred in Vale Summit.

The child was riding in a car operated by her aunt, Miss Mary Margaret Woods, Lonaconing, who was injured about the chest and was X-rayed at the hospital. Miss Woods' father, Terrence P. Woods, a passenger in the car, wa treated for a head injury.

Another niece, Mary Carmel Lippold, about 4 months old, apparently was uninjured. The accident, according to Maryland State Police occurred about 11:30 a. m. in Vale Summit.

Cookie Blamed

Tfc. Donald R. Wade said Miss Woods was traveling towards Lonaconing. As she was rounding a curve she reportedly handed a cookie to her niece, Frances Ann.

She apparently lost control of the car, which plummeted down an embankment for a distance of about 50 feet and came to a stop among some trees.

The car wound up lying on its side about five feet off the ground up again the trees, and police said it was demolished. Miss Woods, police said, is being charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing today.

Hines Named To Plant Post

A Cumberland native has been appointed engineer in quality control in the technical department of Chemstrand Corporation's Acrilan acrylic fiber plant at Decatur, Ala.

He is James W. Hines, former school teacher at Oldtown. Hines is a graduate of Allegany High School, attended Potomac State College in Keyser, W. Va., and took his A. B. degree at Washington College.

He worked for the Celanese Corporation at the Amcelle plant here before joining Chemstrand last September. He is a member of the American Society for Quality Control.

Hines' appointment was among six technical promotions announced yesterday by F. William Koster, vice president and plant manager.

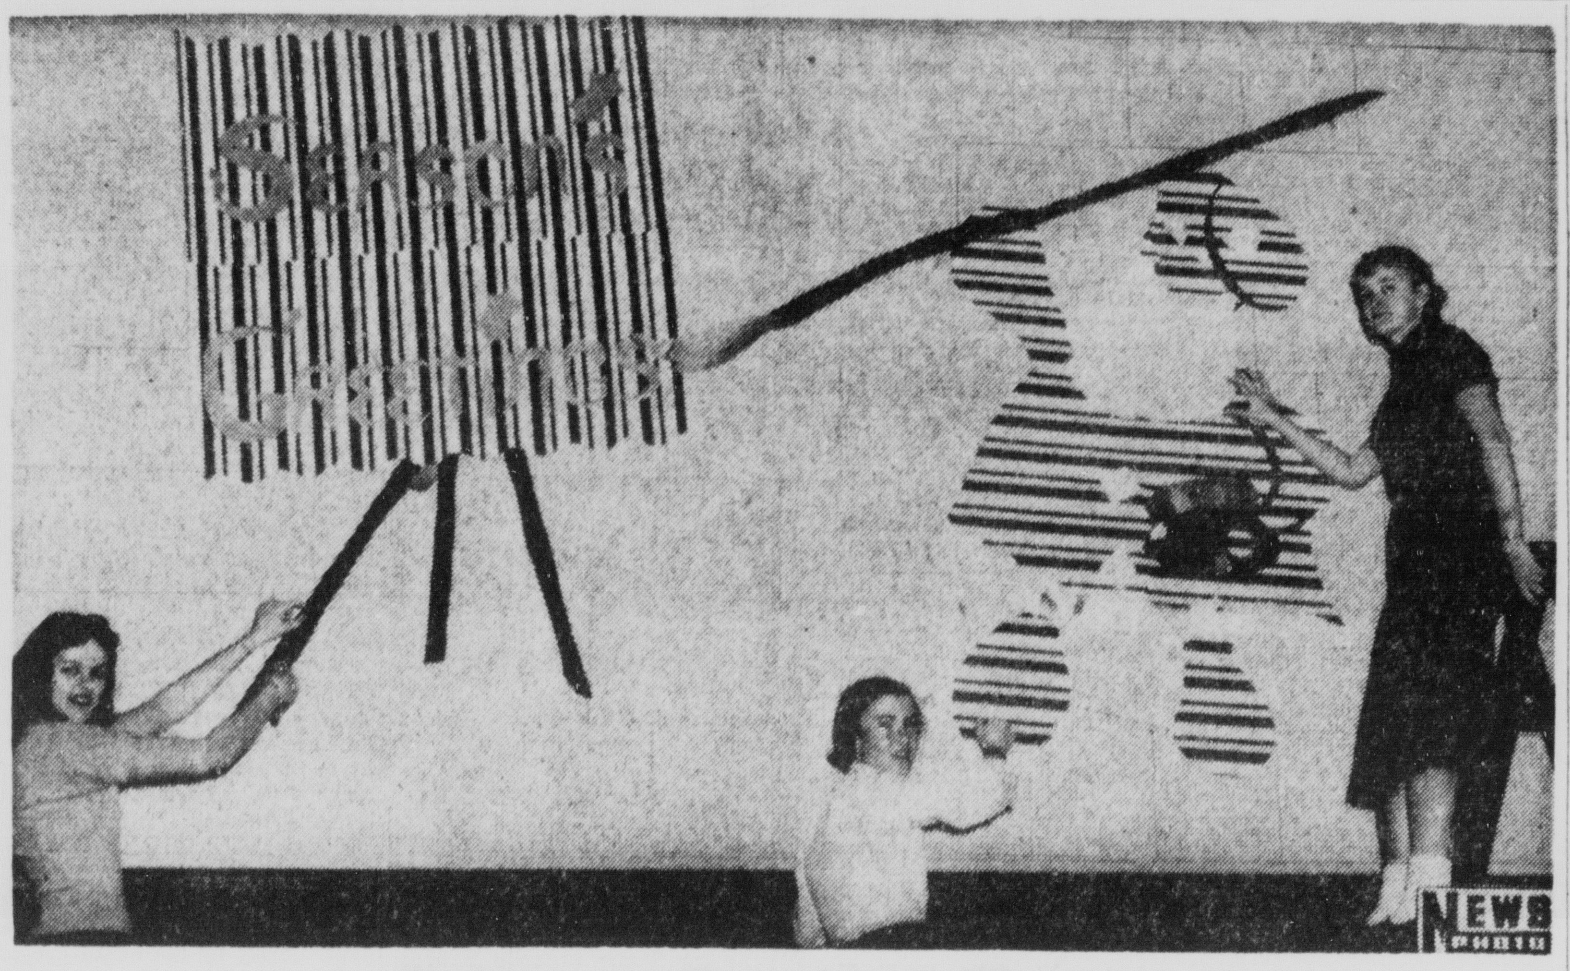
Dinner To Be Served

A swiss steak dinner will be served by the Ladies Auxiliary of District 16, Volunteer Firemen, today from 4 until 6:30 o'clock, at the North Branch fire hall.



Cafeteria Gets Yule Touch

Each year about this time the Senior Art and Poster Club at Allegany High School does its bit to add to the Christmas spirit by decorating the school and painting holiday scenes on the windows of the hospitals and various county institutions. Shown erecting a colorful Santa Claus in the school cafeteria are (left to right) Roberta Seitz, club president; Eleanor Murphy and Sharon Growden.

Allegany Art Students Paint Christmas Scenes

More than 30 Allegany High School students—members of the Senior Art and Poster Club—have been like busy beavers this week adding the Christmas touch to the school and spreading it around town to cheer up the ill and the old.

Mrs. Ethel C. Bruce, art teacher who directs the project each year, explained yesterday that the Allegany County League for Crippled Children's building, more windows at Sacred Heart Hospital and the new enclosed porch at the County Infirmary have been added to the in-town projects of the club.

At both Sacred Heart and Memorial hospital the art students are painting many of the windows, especially in the pediatrics sections. They also are busy at the County Home and Infirmary as well as the Crippled Children's League.

Within the schools the bulletin boards, showcases and windows all are getting the treatment.

Roberta Seitz is president of the club, composed of sophomores, juniors and seniors. Other members are Doris Dahl, Nancy Crippen, Leona Evans, Sandy McGee, Etta Braner, Kay Ort, Arlean Atkinson, Alameta Boor, Janet Pfeiffer, Carole Runion, Sharon Growden, Sandra Wagner, Eleanor Murphy, Darla Koerner, LeDonna Monnett and Louise Mirkin.

Also helping are Marianne Holzen, Rosemarie Darr, Shirley Beckwith, Carol Jean Sweitzer, Sharon Reighard, Carol Myers, Judy Stein, Judy Reuse, George Hale, Sherman Sweitzer, Eileen Mitchell, Gail Campbell, Boyd Dawson, Richard Scarlett and Alice Hagan.

Estate Dispute Case Continued To January 7

Chief Judge George Henderson yesterday heard part of the testimony in an involved case concerning the estate of a Lonaconing man, but continued the hearing until Saturday, January 7, to hear more of the evidence.

The first suit was titled James S. Getty, administrator of the estate of Matthew A. Jones, who died April 26, 1954, against Clarence W. Jones, a son. At issue in this case is an accounting concerning a joint bank account held by the father and son which had a balance of about $3,000 at the time of the father's death. Also involved is $112, the amount Clarence allegedly kept out of $225 found in a dresser drawer as well as $400 of the father's money which reportedly was spent for repairs to the family house.

A second case involves Getty as administrator against James W. Jones, another son. This action involves the administrator's right to obtain an accounting of $839 paid to James as designated beneficiary from an insurance policy carried by his father with the Westvaco Employes Fund. Also involved was $113 which Clarence gave to James from the $225 found in the drawer.

The third suit, the one continued until January 7, is titled Elizabeth Miller, Ethel Llewellyn, Janet Brouch and Clarence W. Jones against James Jones.

The three sisters and brother, in the latter suit, are seeking an accounting of life insurance money from the estate of their father.

They contend that under the terms of his will, James Jones and Clarence W. Jones were to share equally from a $750 insurance policy carried by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and a death benefit payment from the Westvaco Employes Fund.

The complainants state that the company paid $1,539 to James Jones, which amounted to the insurance policy and the death benefit. They contend a change of beneficiary signature identified as their father's was not his.

In their suit, the plaintiffs are asking the court to direct James Jones to account for the life insurance benefits and to deposit $750 with the court so that it may be divided among them.

James McKalvey, manager of the Liberty Trust Company branch at Lonaconing, testified yesterday morning as to signatures of Matthew A. Jones.

He said that the signature on the will and the signature on the application for employes relief fund at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company were not the same.

Representing James Jones is Leslie Clark while the complainants are represented by James S. Getty, Gorman E. Getty and William J. Gunter. The latter represents Clarence W. Jones.

Besides McKalvey the witnesses yesterday were the two brothers, Hugh M. O'Rourke, who handles the accounts of the Westvaco Employes Fund, and James S. Getty.

Meeting Is Set For Settlement Of Job Dispute

Representatives of the Cumberland Building Trades and H. D. Case, head of the Case Construction Company of Mt. Airy, are scheduled to meet at 8 a. m. today at the Allegany Trades Council headquarters here in an effort to settle a dispute concerning the use by the company of men from outside the area in a bridge construction job at Bloomington.

The dispute developed at 8:45 a. m. yesterday when some 30 men from the Bloomington area blocked the highway and refused to allow five cement trucks to pass to get to the job.

Shortly after noon yesterday First Sgt. Harry Holsinger of the State Police barracks at LaVale, head of a nine-man State Police force on the scene, got the disputants to reach a temporary agreement.

The men agreed to allow the trucks past with the understanding that after 63 yards of concrete were poured during the rest of the day there would be no more work on the project until after this morning's meeting with the company head. One man was to be left on the job to keep the concrete from freezing.

Harry Hickle, representative of Local 37, Operating Engineers, said the company brought in about 10 workers from outside the area despite the fact that the contract calls for the company to obtain its unskilled labor from the employment office nearest the job. The Oakland employment office reported no such contact was made there.

The men who blocked the roadway for trucks had applied for jobs and believe that the project should be utilized to relieve unemployment in that portion of Garrett County.

Hickle emphasized that the company's hiring policy is being observed especially because it is scheduled to start work the Wednesday after Christmas on construction of a new Market Street bridge.

The Bloomington job is a bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. The State Roads Commission is scheduled to let bids in the spring for construction of a new section of State Route 135 over the bridge route. Motorists on Route 135 now must cross the railroad tracks.

Hickle said the building trades will have about 50 men at the bridge site at 5 a. m, today to ascertain that the temporary "no work" agreement is kept. State Police at LaVale said Lt. W. E. O'Hara will head a crew of about 10 troopers who will go to scene at 7 a. m. to preserve order.

Class To Have Party

A jingle party will be held by the Mary Martha Class of Park Place Church tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. J. C. Driver, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Agriculture Head Named By Marland

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—A Wood County farmer, John T. Johnson of Williamstown, was appointed by Gov. William C. Marland today as West Virginia's new agriculture commissioner.

He succeeds James Blaine McLaughlin, who died at the age of 71 last month after holding the office for 23 years.

Johnson, a 63-year-old Democrat who has never run for political office, was appointed for an unexpired term ending Jan. 19, 1957, and until the election and qualification of a successor. The office will be filled for a four-year term in the general election next November.

Johnson was master of the State Grange officers for eight years. He and his father were charter members of the Wood County Farm Bureau and Johnson has been a member ever since.

The new commissioner has been a member of the State Soil Conservation Committee for the past five years and has served as a director of the Wood County 4-H Camp and as a director in the Parkersburg Farmers Market.

Johnson was a director in the Wood County Farm Loan Assn., served as president of the Ohio Valley Cooperative Assn., and was a GI instructor in the on-the-farm training program.

Shoppers Urged To Be Wary Of Purse Snatchers

Residents who are in the midst of their Christmas shopping in crowded local stores are reminded by City Police to be a little more cautious in watching their wallets and purses.

Yesterday police received at least two calls from shoppers who reported their wallets were taken as they were making purchases.

A culprit who snatches up wallets and purses of unsuspecting shoppers can easily mingle into the crowd and get away, police added.

The calls received yesterday at the desk were referred to the Police Detective Bureau.

Infant Is Injured In Fall Down Stairs

Paul Henry Meleri, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Meleri, RFD 6, Roberts Place, was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of injuries.

Hospital attaches said the youngster injured his head in a fall down a stairway at his home. He was kept overnight for observation.

To Entertain Circle

The Christine Garnett Circle of First Baptist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Charles Runkles, 717 Gephart Drive, at 2 p.m. today.

City Officials Discuss Ban On Parking

Plan Would Affect Bedford, Frederick

City officials yesterday discussed a plan to prohibit parking on one side of both Frederick and Bedford streets between the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks and the city limits.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said one of the provisions of the agreement for improving Frederick Street and instituting one-way traffic on both thoroughfares was that the State Roads Commission insisted that there be parking on only one side of both streets.

Mayor Eves and Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn discussed the proposal yesterday morning.

Then in the afternoon, Mayor Eves, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum and Police Lt. Raymond R. Johnston went into a further discussion.

Some uncertainty still prevails as to the preferable side for prohibiting parking. It was recommended that signs be posted along the streets instead of having the curbs painted red.

Which side of the street will be affected by the parking ban has not yet been determined but Chief Flynn said the installation of signs will start the first of the week and the regulation will be enforced once they are installed.

Considerable argument has been raised for prohibiting parking on the right side of each one-way street.

Many observers also are of the opinion that the 25-mile speed limit on both streets is unrealistic because the objective of one-way streets is to speed the safe flow of traffic.

The parking ban will not affect the sections of the two streets between the B&O tracks and Mechanic Street.

Farm Costs Data Given In Report

Farm costs in general have changed very little this year, according to Earl L. Park, agricultural statistician for the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service.

There have been price and cost changes, Park said, but the overall remains about the same as last year.

Cost for items produced on the farms, such as seed, feed, feeder livestock and breeding stock, have dropped but wage rates, taxes and machinery have gone up.

Hourly farm wage rates in Maryland rose about six per cent over last year, he pointed out. On October 1, 1954, the hourly rate in the state was 88 cents, compared to 93 cents an hour on the same date this year.

The daily rate went from $6.80 in 1954 to $6.90 in 1955. Maryland farm wages are slightly above the national average, which was 75 cents in 1954 and 77 cents this year.

Park said he expects feed and seed prices to be somewhat lower in 1956. Fertilizers, farm supplies and livestock for feeding and replacement should remain fairly stable.

Farm wage rates, interest rates, building materials, farm machinery, motor supplies and motor vehicles will be slightly higher next year, he said, and property taxes may be up about five per cent.

Seeks $1,000 Damages For Virginia Crash

A $1,000 damage suit was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court as a result of an automobile accident which occurred September 4, 1954, on U. S. Route 1 about four miles south of Ashland, Va.

The suit was filed for Howard D. Woods, 454 South Fifth Street, Steubenville, Ohio, by the law form of Gunter and Geppert against Courtney Kessell of Mt. Savage. The plaintiff contended that his car was stopped on U. S. Route 1 preparatory to making a left turn and it was struck from behind by Kessell's automobile, causing extensive property damage.

Port Agency Is Cleared By Council

Gas Drilling Plan Approved

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP) — A proposal to create a five-member agency to boost Maryland's port business, especially in Baltimore, was cleared today by the Legislative Council.

The council, between-sessions investigative arm of the General Assembly, will be represented tomorrow at a meeting with Gov. McKeldin to determine the dates for a special session of the Legislature to consider legislation setting up the new agency.

As approved by the council, it would be appointed by the governor, wield land-condemnation powers, and be supported continuously by a special gasoline tax of one-fourth of one cent per gallon.

Other Action

The council, in its last regular session of the year, also:

1. Rejected a plan to reorganize the Department of Employment Security.

2. Approved in principle a committee report to revise election laws so that, in effect, there would be virtually no limit to political campaign expenditures.

3. Recommended legislation to keep the State Aviation Commision in business.

4. Approved a proposal to regulate natural gas drilling and distribution in Maryland.

Two of the five members on the port authority would be named by the governor from the Eastern and Western Shores at large.

The other three would be picked by him from lists submitted by Anne Arundel and Baltimore County commissioners and Baltimore City officials.

As further protection for the counties the council decided that the proposed legislation should require the authority to get final clearance from county officials before buying or condemning property to improve a port.

The only vote against the port package proposal came from Sen. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel), who objected to financing the authority's operations through the gasoline tax.

He also opposed an earlier plan to raise the money by committing revenues from toll bridges and the Baltimore harbor tunnel.

Gas Tax Substitute

Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert), council chairman, proposed the gas tax as a substitute for the original financing plan, which was embodied in a report by a 22-member joint commission named by the governor and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore.

It was obvious at a morning meeting of the council's port committee that any port legislation tying up bridge and tunnel toll revenues would meet with vigorous opposition from county legislators.

It was estimated the quarter-cent gas tax would raise about $1,700,000 a year. The committee was told this would be more than enough to pay the authority's operating costs and service a 15 million dollar bond issue to be floated by the authority for initial expenses.

In turning down Director Robert B. Kimble's suggestion for reorganizing the Department of Employment Security, the council said it preferred to wait until its 1956 meetings before taking action.

Kimble, former Allegany County senator who was named last spring to untangle the affairs of the probe-ridden department, had asked for legislation to make a lone executive director responsible for all administrative affairs of the department. He also recommended that a three-man board be set up as a sort of court to hear appeals from administrative decisions in unemployment compensation cases.

The director now serves as one of three members on the employment Security Board, which handles the department's administrative affairs and appeals from rulings of department officials.

Some Proposals Adopted

The council, however, did adopt recommendations aimed at tighter supervision of department expense funds and giving unemployment pay to workers who are idled up to three weeks when their plants close down for vacation, inventory or allied purposes.

The recommendation applies only to those not receiving full vacation pay from the company.

There was a minimum of discussion before the legislators approved the natural gas and election law proposals.

Sen. DiDomenico (D-Balto 2nd) said his gas committee had adopted its recommendations after several hearings in Garrett County, where about 100 wells had been drilled. The recommendations would enable the Department of Geology and Mines to regulate the spacing, drilling and operation of wells and would standardize royalty rights of landowners who leased their property to gas drillers.

Sen. Wheatley (D-Prince Georges) was not present to explain the proposed election law recommendations, but they apparently are designed to narrow a candidate's responsibility for reporting campaign expenditures.

For instance, the law now sets maximums on the amounts which may be spent for campaigns. These generally are $10 per 1,000 registered voters up to 50,000 voters, plus $5 for every 1,000 voters in excess of that. There are about 1,100,000 voters in Maryland, which would put the maximum allowable expenses at $7,750.

Paper Mill Is Shut Down By Power Failure

Tube Blows Out In Huge Boiler

The Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company was forced to shut down yesterday morning due to power failure, and normal production was not expected to be resumed until sometime today.

A spokesman for the plant said last night the shutdown resulted when a tube blew out about 9 a. m. in the last pass of a 600-pound boiler.

The employes at work in the plant were sent home with the exception of a few maintenance crews. By 4 p. m. yesterday, No. 6 paper machine, one of seven machines, was back in operation.

Four boilers, including a waste heat boiler, are utilized to supply power to operate the plant. On Monday one of two 600-pound boilers was shut down in order that a leak could be repaired.

With the extra load on the other 600-pound boiler, the tube blew out and was badly ruptured. The 600-pound boilers produce 300,000 pounds of steam per hour while the other two boilers produce 100,000 pounds each, the spokesman said.

He said that following the shutdown the steam pressure was down to about 40 pounds and it took about an hour and a half to get up enough steam to get No. 6 machine running.

Daily over 600 tons of coal are used by the plant to produce necessary power for the mill, the spokesman said. Normal production is expected to be resumed on day shift today, the spokesman added.

Youth Is Jailed In Theft Case

David L. Green, 21, who has served time in correctional institutions for breaking and entering, was arrested yesterday by State Police Sgt. William F. Baker.

Baker said Green broke into Eckhart Elementary School November 23, took a 14-pound turkey, a 10-pound turkey, 10 pounds of hot dogs and a quantity of butter. Total value, said Baker, was over $20.

Green, who has served previous sentences for breaking into Eckhart School and the Crystal Drive-In Theatre, was charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

Baker said Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel for the school board, assisted in the investigation.

Corriganville Auto Is Damaged By Fire

Corriganville Volunteer Firemen were summoned about 6 o'clock last evening to the home of Raymond C. Miller, a Potomac Edison Company employe, to extinguish a fire in his automobile.

Firemen said Miller had come home from work and put his car in a garage at his home. Some time later, a grandson went to the garage to get a pair of pliers and discovered the building filled with smoke.

The interior of the automobile was ablaze and firemen said the car was badly damaged. The flames were extinguished with chemicals. Sixteen men and two pieces of equipment answered the alarm. Firemen prevented damage to the garage and dwelling.

Accident Victim Still Critical

Robert A. Logsdon, Hyndman, one of eight youths injured Monday night in a two-car crash in Ellerslie, remained on the "critical" list last night at Memorial Hospital.

Another victim, Miss JoAnn Moore, 16, of 126 Humbird Street, who was on the critical list at the same hospital, was reported "slightly improved" last night.

Four Injured In Area Auto Accidents

Two Cars Collide On Valley Road

Four area residents were injured, one being admitted to a local hospital, as a result of two separate highway accidents which occurred yesterday.

Two Valley Road residents, Miss Shirley Lee Westfall, 17, and Allene Jones, 28, were taken to Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision on Valley Road about 4½ miles north of Cumberland.

Miss Westfall, attaches said, was examined and apparently was uninjured, while Allene Jones sustained a laceration of her face and abrasions of her leg.

Headon Collision

The accident occurred about 5:30 p. m. as Miss Westfall, driving south, collided headon with a car operated by Omer Nazelrod, 27, also of Valley Road. Nazelrod apparently was uninjured.

Tfc Lynwood Clark, who investigated, said Miss Westfall is being charged with operating an auto without a license and failing to keep to the right of the center of the highway.

In the other accident, a 16-month-old girl, Frances Ann Lippold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lippold, Christie Road, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a fractured shoulder sustained in a mishap which occurred in Vale Summit.

The child was riding in a car operated by her aunt, Miss Mary Margaret Woods, Lonaconing, who was injured about the chest and was X-rayed at the hospital. Miss Woods' father, Terrence P. Woods, a passenger in the car, wa treated for a head injury.

Another niece, Mary Carmel Lippold, about 4 months old, apparently was uninjured. The accident, according to Maryland State Police occurred about 11:30 a. m. in Vale Summit.

Cookie Blamed

Tfc. Donald R. Wade said Miss Woods was traveling towards Lonaconing. As she was rounding a curve she reportedly handed a cookie to her niece, Frances Ann.

She apparently lost control of the car, which plummeted down an embankment for a distance of about 50 feet and came to a stop among some trees.

The car wound up lying on its side about five feet off the ground up again the trees, and police said it was demolished. Miss Woods, police said, is being charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing today.

Allegany Art Students Paint Christmas Scenes

More than 30 Allegany High School students—members of the Senior Art and Poster Club—have been like busy beavers this week adding the Christmas touch to the school and spreading it around town to cheer up the ill and the old.

Mrs. Ethel C. Bruce, art teacher who directs the project each year, explained yesterday that the Allegany County League for Crippled Children's building, more windows at Sacred Heart Hospital and the new enclosed porch at the County Infirmary have been added to the in-town projects of the club.

At both Sacred Heart and Memorial hospital the art students are painting many of the windows, especially in the pediatrics sections. They also are busy at the County Home and Infirmary as well as the Crippled Children's League.

Within the schools the bulletin boards, showcases and windows all are getting the treatment.

Roberta Seitz is president of the club, composed of sophomores, juniors and seniors. Estate Dispute Case Continued To January 7

Chief Judge George Henderson yesterday heard part of the testimony in an involved case concerning the estate of a Lonaconing man, but continued the hearing until Saturday, January 7, to hear more of the evidence.

The first suit was titled James S. Getty, administrator of the estate of Matthew A. Jones, who died April 26, 1954, against Clarence W. Jones, a son. At issue in this case is an accounting concerning a joint bank account held by the father and son which had a balance of about $3,000 at the time of the father's death. Also involved is $112, the amount Clarence allegedly kept out of $225 found in a dresser drawer as well as $400 of the father's money which reportedly was spent for repairs to the family house.

A second case involves Getty as administrator against James W. Jones, another son. This action involves the administrator's right to obtain an accounting of $839 paid to James as designated beneficiary from an insurance policy carried by his father with the Westvaco Employes Fund. Also involved was $113 which Clarence gave to James from the $225 found in the drawer.

The third suit, the one continued until January 7, is titled Elizabeth Miller, Ethel Llewellyn, Janet Brouch and Clarence W. Jones against James Jones.

The three sisters and brother, in the latter suit, are seeking an accounting of life insurance money from the estate of their father.

They contend that under the terms of his will, James Jones and Clarence W. Jones were to share equally from a $750 insurance policy carried by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and a death benefit payment from the Westvaco Employes Fund.

The complainants state that the company paid $1,539 to James Jones, which amounted to the insurance policy and the death benefit. They contend a change of beneficiary signature identified as their father's was not his.

In their suit, the plaintiffs are asking the court to direct James Jones to account for the life insurance benefits and to deposit $750 with the court so that it may be divided among them.

James McKalvey, manager of the Liberty Trust Company branch at Lonaconing, testified yesterday morning as to signatures of Matthew A. Jones.

He said that the signature on the will and the signature on the application for employes relief fund at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company were not the same.

Representing James Jones is Leslie Clark while the complainants are represented by James S. Getty, Gorman E. Getty and William J. Gunter. The latter represents Clarence W. Jones.

Besides McKalvey the witnesses yesterday were the two brothers, Hugh M. O'Rourke, who handles the accounts of the Westvaco Employes Fund, and James S. Getty.

Meeting Is Set For Settlement Of Job Dispute

Representatives of the Cumberland Building Trades and H. D. Case, head of the Case Construction Company of Mt. Airy, are scheduled to meet at 8 a. m. today at the Allegany Trades Council headquarters here in an effort to settle a dispute concerning the use by the company of men from outside the area in a bridge construction job at Bloomington.

The dispute developed at 8:45 a. m. yesterday when some 30 men from the Bloomington area blocked the highway and refused to allow five cement trucks to pass to get to the job.

Shortly after noon yesterday First Sgt. Harry Holsinger of the State Police barracks at LaVale, head of a nine-man State Police force on the scene, got the disputants to reach a temporary agreement.

The men agreed to allow the trucks past with the understanding that after 63 yards of concrete were poured during the rest of the day there would be no more work on the project until after this morning's meeting with the company head. One man was to be left on the job to keep the concrete from freezing.

Harry Hickle, representative of Local 37, Operating Engineers, said the company brought in about 10 workers from outside the area despite the fact that the contract calls for the company to obtain its unskilled labor from the employment office nearest the job. The Oakland employment office reported no such contact was made there.

The men who blocked the roadway for trucks had applied for jobs and believe that the project should be utilized to relieve unemployment in that portion of Garrett County.

Hickle emphasized that the company's hiring policy is being observed especially because it is scheduled to start work the Wednesday after Christmas on construction of a new Market Street bridge.

The Bloomington job is a bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. The State Roads Commission is scheduled to let bids in the spring for construction of a new section of State Route 135 over the bridge route. Motorists on Route 135 now must cross the railroad tracks.

Hickle said the building trades will have about 50 men at the bridge site at 5 a. m. today to ascertain that the temporary "no work" agreement is kept. State Police at LaVale said Lt. W. E. O'Hara will head a crew of about 10 troopers who will go to scene at 7 a. m. to preserve order.

Agriculture Head Named By Marland

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—A Wood County farmer, John T. Johnson of Williamstown, was appointed by Gov. William C. Marland today as West Virginia's new agriculture commissioner.

He succeeds James Blaine McLaughlin, who died at the age of 71 last month after holding the office for 23 years.

Johnson, a 63-year-old Democrat who has never run for political office, was appointed for an unexpired term ending Jan. 19, 1957, and until the election and qualification of a successor. The office will be filled for a four-year term in the general election next November.

Johnson was master of the State Grange officers for eight years. He and his father were charter members of the Wood County Farm Bureau and Johnson has been a member ever since.

The new commissioner has been a member of the State Soil Conservation Committee for the past five years and has served as a director of the Wood County 4-H Camp and as a director in the Parkersburg Farmers Market.

Johnson was a director in the Wood County Farm Loan Assn., served as president of the Ohio Valley Cooperative Assn., and was a GI instructor in the on-the-farm training program.

Shoppers Urged To Be Wary Of Purse Snatchers

Residents who are in the midst of their Christmas shopping in crowded local stores are reminded by City Police to be a little more cautious in watching their wallets and purses.

Yesterday police received at least two calls from shoppers who reported their wallets were taken as they were making purchases.

A culprit who snatches up wallets and purses of unsuspecting shoppers can easily mingle into the crowd and get away, police added.

The calls received yesterday at the desk were referred to the Police Detective Bureau.

He came here from Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla.

Sgt. Waldrop served with the Army in Korea as a member of the Sixth Division Engineers, saw duty in the Philippine Islands, serving at Clark Field, and spent some time in Alaska.

He is now rooming at 332 Avirett Avenue.

This is the first time the local station has been manned by three full-time recruiters.

City Officials Discuss Ban On Parking

Plan Would Affect Bedford, Frederick

City officials yesterday discussed a plan to prohibit parking on one side of both Frederick and Bedford streets between the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks and the city limits.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said one of the provisions of the agreement for improving Frederick Street and instituting one-way traffic on both thoroughfares was that the State Roads Commission insisted that there be parking on only one side of both streets.

Mayor Eves and Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn discussed the proposal yesterday morning.

Then in the afternoon, Mayor Eves, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum and Police Lt. Raymond R. Johnston went into a further discussion.

Some uncertainty still prevails as to the preferable side for prohibiting parking. It was recommended that signs be posted along the streets instead of having the curbs painted red.

Which side of the street will be affected by the parking ban has not yet been determined but Chief Flynn said the installation of signs will start the first of the week and the regulation will be enforced once they are installed.

Considerable argument has been raised for prohibiting parking on the right side of each one-way street.

Many observers also are of the opinion that the 25-mile speed limit on both streets is unrealistic because the objective of one-way streets is to speed the safe flow of traffic.

The parking ban will not affect the sections of the two streets between the B&O tracks and Mechanic Street.

Farm Costs Data Given In Report

Farm costs in general have changed very little this year, according to Earl L. Park, agricultural statistician for the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service.

There have been price and cost changes, Park said, but the overall remains about the same as last year.

Cost for items produced on the farms, such as seed, feed, feeder livestock and breeding stock, have dropped but wage rates, taxes and machinery have gone up.

Hourly farm wage rates in Maryland rose about six per cent over last year, he pointed out. On October 1, 1954, the hourly rate in the state was 88 cents, compared to 93 cents an hour on the same date this year.

The daily rate went from $6.80 in 1954 to $6.90 in 1955. Maryland farm wages are slightly above the national average, which was 75 cents in 1954 and 77 cents this year.

Park said he expects feed and seed prices to be somewhat lower in 1956. Fertilizers, farm supplies and livestock for feeding and replacement should remain fairly stable.

Farm wage rates, interest rates, building materials, farm machinery, motor supplies and motor vehicles will be slightly higher next year, he said, and property taxes may be up about five per cent.

Seeks $1,000 Damages For Virginia Crash

A $1,000 damage suit was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court as a result of an automobile accident which occurred September 4, 1954, on U. S. Route 1 about four miles south of Ashland, Va.

The suit was filed for Howard D. Woods, 454 South Fifth Street, Steubenville, Ohio, by the law form of Gunter and Geppert against Courtney Kessell of Mt. Savage. The plaintiff contended that his car was stopped on U. S. Route 1 preparatory to making a left turn and it was struck from behind by Kessell's automobile, causing extensive property damage.

Accident Victim Still Critical

Robert A. Logsdon, Hyndman, one of eight youths injured Monday night in a two-car crash in Ellerslie, remained on the "critical" list last night at Memorial Hospital.

Another victim, Miss JoAnn Moore, 16, of 126 Humbird Street, who was on the critical list at the same hospital, was reported "slightly improved" last night.

Port Agency Is Cleared By Council

Gas Drilling Plan Approved

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14 (AP) — A proposal to create a five-member agency to boost Maryland's port business, especially in Baltimore, was cleared today by the Legislative Council.

The council, between-sessions investigative arm of the General Assembly, will be represented tomorrow at a meeting with Gov. McKeldin to determine the dates for a special session of the Legislature to consider legislation setting up the new agency.

As approved by the council, it would be appointed by the governor, wield land-condemnation powers, and be supported continuously by a special gasoline tax of one-fourth of one cent per gallon.

Other Action

The council, in its last regular session of the year, also:

1. Rejected a plan to reorganize the Department of Employment Security.

2. Approved in principle a committee report to revise election laws so that, in effect, there would be virtually no limit to political campaign expenditures.

3. Recommended legislation to keep the State Aviation Commision in business.

4. Approved a proposal to regulate natural gas drilling and distribution in Maryland.

Two of the five members on the port authority would be named by the governor from the Eastern and Western Shores at large.

The other three would be picked by him from lists submitted by Anne Arundel and Baltimore County commissioners and Baltimore City officials.

As further protection for the counties the council decided that the proposed legislation should require the authority to get final clearance from county officials before buying or condemning property to improve a port.

The only vote against the port package proposal came from Sen. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel), who objected to financing the authority's operations through the gasoline tax.

He also opposed an earlier plan to raise the money by committing revenues from toll bridges and the Baltimore harbor tunnel.

Gas Tax Substitute

Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert), council chairman, proposed the gas tax as a substitute for the original financing plan, which was embodied in a report by a 22-member joint commission named by the governor and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore.

It was obvious at a morning meeting of the council's port committee that any port legislation tying up bridge and tunnel toll revenues would meet with vigorous opposition from county legislators.

It was estimated the quarter-cent gas tax would raise about $1,700,000 a year. The committee was told this would be more than enough to pay the authority's operating costs and service a 15 million dollar bond issue to be floated by the authority for initial expenses.

In turning down Director Robert B. Kimble's suggestion for reorganizing the Department of Employment Security, the council said it preferred to wait until its 1956 meetings before taking action.

Kimble, former Allegany County senator who was named last spring to untangle the affairs of the probe-ridden department, had asked for legislation to make a lone executive director responsible for all administrative affairs of the department. He also recommended that a three-man board be set up as a sort of court to hear appeals from administrative decisions in unemployment compensation cases.

The director now serves as one of three members on the employment Security Board, which handles the department's administrative affairs and appeals from rulings of department officials.

Some Proposals Adopted

The council, however, did adopt recommendations aimed at tighter supervision of department expense funds and giving unemployment pay to workers who are idled up to three weeks when their plants close down for vacation, inventory or allied purposes.

The recommendation applies only to those not receiving full vacation pay from the company.

There was a minimum of discussion before the legislators approved the natural gas and election law proposals.

Sen. DiDomenico (D-Balto 2nd) said his gas committee had adopted its recommendations after several hearings in Garrett County, where about 100 wells had been drilled. The recommendations would enable the Department of Geology and Mines to regulate the spacing, drilling and operation of wells and would standardize royalty rights of landowners who leased their property to gas drillers.

Sen. Wheatley (D-Prince Georges) was not present to explain the proposed election law recommendations, but they apparently are designed to narrow a candidate's responsibility for reporting campaign expenditures.

For instance, the law now sets maximums on the amounts which may be spent for campaigns. These generally are $10 per 1,000 registered voters up to 50,000 voters, plus $5 for every 1,000 voters in excess of that. There are about 1,100,000 voters in Maryland, which would put the maximum allowable expenses at $7,750.

Paper Mill Is Shut Down By Power Failure

Tube Blows Out In Huge Boiler

The Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company was forced to shut down yesterday morning due to power failure, and normal production was not expected to be resumed until sometime today.

A spokesman for the plant said last night the shutdown resulted when a tube blew out about 9 a. m. in the last pass of a 600-pound boiler.

The employes at work in the plant were sent home with the exception of a few maintenance crews. By 4 p. m. yesterday, No. 6 paper machine, one of seven machines, was back in operation.

Four boilers, including a waste heat boiler, are utilized to supply power to operate the plant. On Monday one of two 600-pound boilers was shut down in order that a leak could be repaired.

With the extra load on the other 600-pound boiler, the tube blew out and was badly ruptured. The 600-pound boilers produce 300,000 pounds of steam per hour while the other two boilers produce 100,000 pounds each, the spokesman said.

He said that following the shutdown the steam pressure was down to about 40 pounds and it took about an hour and a half to get up enough steam to get No. 6 machine running.

Daily over 600 tons of coal are used by the plant to produce necessary power for the mill, the spokesman said. Normal production is expected to be resumed on day shift today, the spokesman added.

Youth Is Jailed In Theft Case

A young Eckhart coal miner landed in County Jail yesterday—charged with providing a Thanksgiving dinner for his family at the expense of the Allegany County Board of Education.

David L. Green, 21, who has served time in correctional institutions for breaking and entering, was arrested yesterday by State Police Sgt. William F. Baker.

Baker said Green broke into Eckhart Elementary School November 23, took a 14-pound turkey, a 10-pound turkey, 10 pounds of hot dogs and a quantity of butter. Total value, said Baker, was over $20.

Green, who has served previous sentences for breaking into Eckhart School and the Crystal Drive-In Theatre, was charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

Baker said Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel for the school board, assisted in the investigation.

Corriganville Auto Is Damaged By Fire

Corriganville Volunteer Firemen were summoned about 6 o'clock last evening to the home of Raymond C. Miller, a Potomac Edison Company employe, to extinguish a fire in his automobile.

Firemen said Miller had come home from work and put his car in a garage at his home. Some time later, a grandson went to the garage to get a pair of pliers and discovered the building filled with smoke.

The interior of the automobile was ablaze and firemen said the car was badly damaged. The flames were extinguished with chemicals. Sixteen men and two pieces of equipment answered the alarm. Firemen prevented damage to the garage and dwelling.
